Africans in UN Walk Out on British Premier

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson today appealed to the General Assembly to support Britain's Rhodesian policy. Many African delegations walked out of the chamber without waiting to hear what he had to say.

Wilson ignored the walkout. He pledged Britain will pursue its efforts until it has ended the rebellion of Rhodesia's white minority government. He expressed confidence his government was on the right track.

Wilson once more ruled out the use of force to suppress the break-away government of Ian Smith. He omitted any reference to possible use of harsher measures, such as an oil embargo, which many Africans have been demanding.

"We shall not let up until Rhodesia has returned to constitutional rule," he said. "We believe that given time, given patience, the British government and the British Parliament will effectively assert their authority in consultation with those who can claim to speak more representatively on behalf of the Rhodesian people as a whole."

Wilson said he recognized that many nations in the assembly had "criticized us bitterly for not invoking the use of military force to suppress this rebellion," but he added: "This is the way to settle this problem."

The U.N. Security Council, under pressure from African and Asian nations, called on Nov. 20 for an oil embargo against Rhodesia, but Britain would not agree to the move then unless it could be made effective.

The Organization of African Unity voted two weeks ago that its 36 members would break diplomatic relations with Britain by Dec. 15 if it had not put down the rebellious Rhodesian government by then. As of Wednesday's deadline, only Tanzania had done so.

No Change Produced by Vote Recount

A recount of votes cast by Logan Elm School District voters in a special election on Nov. 9 failed to change the final outcome of the balloting.

The recount, conducted last night at the Pickaway County Board of Elections office, was requested by a citizens committee when a four-mill operating levy failed by a very small margin.

The final tabulation was changed, however. After tallying votes on Nov. 9, the totals were 506 for the levy and 419 in opposition. The official recount listed 507 in favor of the operating levy with 417 opposed.

A 55 per cent majority was needed to pass the levy. Another two affirmative votes would have made the LE School Board's efforts successful.

THE OPERATING levy also failed by a small margin at the polls in November when only a simple majority was necessary for passage.

The recount was financed through a Citizens Committee headed by Roger Hobbie. A total of $80 was spent for the tabulating of ballots — $10 for each of the eight precincts.

On hand for the recount were Board of Elections members, Logan Elm School Board members and Hobbie, representing the Citizens Committee.

HONOLULU (AP) — Midway Islands' coral reefs are at least 25 million years old, the Institute of Geophysics at the University of Hawaii estimates.

The institute studied rock samples obtained by drilling deep through Midway's volcanic rock.

Midway, 1,320 miles northwest of Honolulu, is part of the Hawaiian archipelago although not part of the United States' 50th state.

U.S. Warplanes Return To North Viet Targets

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. warplanes returned to the skies of North Viet Nam today but kept away from the industrial heartland they invaded Wednesday with a raid on a key power station outside Haiphong, the nation's major port.

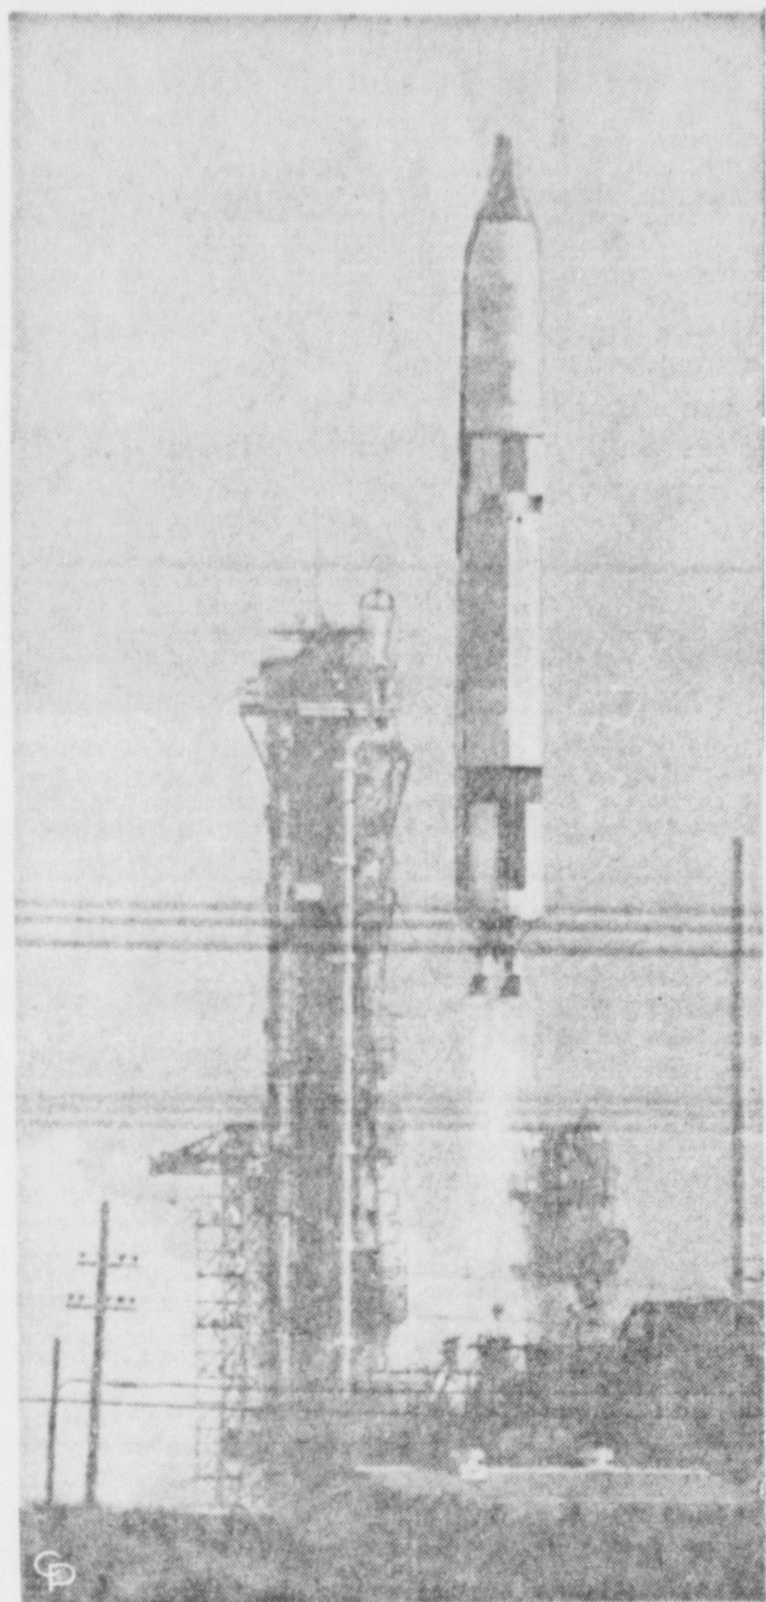

The Air Force reported that the attack on the Uong Bi power plant was even more successful than initially reported and that 25 per cent of the power supply of North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi had been knocked out.

The lightning attack by a flight of Air Force F105 Thunderchief jets chopped off a third of Haiphong's power, a spokesman said, adding "it was bigger than we thought at first." New strikes against the Communist North were aimed today at a radar installation on an island 80 miles southeast of Haiphong, and military and communication targets in the Vinh area to the south.

In Washington, U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara warned North Viet Nam to expect more air raids like Wednesday's attack on the big power station 14 miles northeast of Haiphong, the country's major port.

Returning from a meeting of the NATO Council of Ministers in Paris, McNamara told newsmen the power plant raid "is representative of the type of

Rusk Says NATO Nations Accept Warning on China

PARIS (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk said today he thought that the members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization had "taken seriously" the U.S. warning that Red China is as great a threat to the security of Europe as it is to the rest of the world.

Rusk described the three-day meeting of NATO ministers ending today as a "very profitable meeting." But he declined to comment on the attitudes of America's NATO partners toward the war in Viet Nam, saying, "Let's wait awhile on that."

The secretary seemed well-satisfied with the reception given statements he and Defense

Secretary Robert S. McNamara made on the potential threat posed by the Chinese Communists.

Canadian Foreign Minister Paul Martin told a newsman that Canada was concerned at the report of Red China's nuclear buildup. McNamara gave Wednesday. The defense secretary said China was bent on world conquest and within 10 years would have intercontinental missiles capable of reaching any city in Europe or North America.

Martin said he felt that all the NATO members had cause to take a careful look at McNamara's analysis.

Representatives of some other members of the alliance seemed less worried. A Belgian spokesman said Peking's main target appeared to be the Soviet Union and he did not consider the Chinese threat of immediate concern to Western Europe.

A Norwegian source said McNamara and Rusk had attempted to extend the alliance's scope well beyond Europe, but he did not see how the smaller members could give the United States much help in that direction.

Rusk on Tuesday asked the 14 other NATO nations to support the U.S. war effort in Viet Nam following Rusk's speech but made no commitments to send aid.

U.S. sources said Rusk and McNamara tried to make it plain that although the alliance was formed in 1949 as a barrier against the Soviet Union, the major threat to world peace now might come from Communist China.

Bitter Snowstorm Slaps Southwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A bitter storm in the Southwest dropped 14 inches of snow in some lower areas, creating highway hazards, and spread into the western plains today.

U.S. 66 was closed twice Wednesday near Moriarity, N.M., by snarled traffic on an icy hill. Roads across the northern part of the state and in the southern mountain areas had an extensive ice cover.

Arizona braced for precipitation as Flagstaff measured 10 inches of snow. Almost two feet of snow fell in some northern Arizona points. Maverick had 23 inches and Alpine 22. Subzero temperatures hit sections of northern Arizona.

Capsule Safely Back on Earth

Gemini 7 Soars On After Rendezvous

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — Astronauts Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford rode the Gemini 6 space ship to a safe splashdown in the Atlantic Ocean today, skillfully maximizing the great rendezvous adventure that won the word's praise and admiration.

Schirra, making his second re-entry from space, guided the Gemini 6 to a landing in calm seas only 12 miles from the waiting aircraft carrier Wasp. It was by far the best performance by any Gemini craft. The others, because of computer problems, missed their targets from 40 to 103 miles.

Planes in the recovery force quickly reached Gemini 6 as it bobbed in the water and got the cheering report from the capsule: "We're in great shape."

Astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell hovered nearby in the Gemini 7 when Schirra fired a blast of retro-rockets that hauled Gemini 6 out of its orbit and dropped it into the grasp of the earth's atmosphere.

The spacemen brought back with them movies the world waited eagerly to see. They picture Wednesday's dramatic meeting of space ships high above the earth, a feat that took the United States a long way toward the goal of flight to the moon.

Borman and Lovell, bearded and "a little beat," waved farewell to their space companions and hurtled on toward another big goal—14 days in space. They will come down Saturday, holders of every manned space flight endurance record.

Schirra and Stafford, thwarted in two earlier Gemini 6 launching attempts, rode a powerful Titan 2 rocket into space Wednesday to start the pursuit of the Gemini 7 astronauts, who were heavily bearded and slightly weary after 11 days in orbit.

The dramatic chase covered 105,000 miles and more than 3 1/2 orbits.

Expertly steered by command pilot Schirra, Gemini 6 executed eight orbit-shifting maneuvers that eventually placed the two space vehicles in the same orbit only a few feet apart.

The momentous rendezvous occurred at 2:26 p.m. when the two ships faced each other nose to nose 185 miles above the western Pacific Ocean.

Jet Crash Sets Fire to Homes

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A converted jet fighter faltered on takeoff Wednesday and careened through a residential section, spraying flames that destroyed two homes and charred two others.

Three children were burned slightly when the jet bounced within 30 feet of them but no one on the ground was killed.

The pilot of the RF84 Thunderstreak died in the wreckage, which was scattered over an open field a half-mile from the end of the runway at MacDill Air Force Base.

The pilot was an Air National Guard major from Nebraska, Sturgeon J. Armbrust, 45, Gresham, Neb. His ejection seat was found beside the charred fuselage.

Yule Package Laden Box Car Hit by Fire

CLEVELAND (AP) — A railroad box car loaded with Christmas packages and merchandise was damaged by fire at a New York Central system siding.

The merchandise was being shipped through Railway Express Agency and was bound for Indianapolis, St. Louis and other western cities, fire authorities reported.

Chief William Niles of the third battalion estimated damage to the car at $8,000 and to the contents at $3,000.

Gemini 7 Points Out Sights to 6's Crewmen

SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — Like a couple of travelers who had been there before, the Gemini 7 astronauts pointed out the sights to their fellow space tourists in Gemini 6 Wednesday. They got a little good-natured abuse in return.

"You guys are really a shoddy looking group," said Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra Jr. after he and Air Force Maj. Thomas P. Stafford began keeping company with Gemini 7.

He had greeted the Gemini 7 crew — Air Force Lt. Col. Frank Borman and Navy Cmdr. James A. Lovell Jr. — with:

"There seems to be a lot of traffic up here."

"Call a policeman," Borman suggested.

The spacecraft were nose to nose, about 10 feet apart at the time.

"I can see your lips moving," Lovell said.

"I'm chewing gum," said Schirra.

"Oh, okay. Can you see Frank's beard, Wally?"

"Yeah. I can see yours too — better right now."

Another time Schirra addressed one of the Gemini 7 crew as "Bluebeard" and said:

"You don't have much of a mustache."

The reply: "Don't let them kid you. I'm just a blond."

Most of the radio conversation from Gemini 6 was by Schirra, the command pilot. Stafford was charged with running the on-board computers and the picture taking.

Like all tourists, the spacemen shot still photographs and movies of each other.

They even had a space version of "hold that pose."

"Gemini 7, this is 6," said Stafford. "If you can hold it in the yaw (horizontal angle) for just a little while, we'll try to get in real close and try to get all these close shots."

Early in their scheduled 14-day flight, the Gemini 7 astronauts saw something outside their window that they described as a flapping piece of tape. Flight director Christopher C. Kraft Jr. said at the time it would take a closeup look by Gemini 6 to tell what it was.

Schirra took that look and said:

"You guys are really a shoddy looking group with all those wires hanging around."

"Where are they hanging from?" Borman asked.

"Well, Frank, it looks like it comes out at the separation plane," Schirra said. "It might be the fiberglass. It's approximately 10 to 15 feet long."

Space Medic Killed in Plane Crash

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — A ground party returns to a steep-walled mountain canyon today to recover the body of Dr. W. Randolph Lovelace II, 57, the nation's director of space medicine who was killed in the crash of a small plane.

Lovelace was found dead near the wreckage with his wife, Mary, 53, and the pilot, Milton Brown, 27, all of Albuquerque, N.M. Brown survived long enough to place the others side by side and cover their bodies.

The recovery party reached the crash scene in a 12,500-foot mountain valley Wednesday afternoon as the space program to which Lovelace had contributed reached a milestone with the rendezvous of Gemini 6 and 7.

But darkness postponed return of the bodies to Aspen, 20 miles away, until today.

Dr. Robert Gilruth, director of the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston, Tex., opened his remarks at a news conference after the rendezvous by paying tribute to Lovelace.

"This day of tremendous achievement has one very sad note," he said. "Dr. Lovelace worked very closely with us in the manned flight program since the earliest days."

Noted Author Maugham Is Dead at 91

NICE, France (AP) — British author W. Somerset Maugham died early today at his beloved Riviera villa La Mauresque after he was returned there unconscious from a Nice hospital. He was 91 and suffered a stroke six days ago.

One of the world's most successful writers, Maugham wrote 30 plays, 26 novels and 120 short stories during a career that spanned more than a half-century. His last work, a memoir called "Looking Backward," was published in 1962. He gave up writing fiction in 1953 when he was 78.

Maugham was best known for his fiction that made him a fortune few writers have matched.

His masterpiece was the novel "Of Human Bondage," published in 1915 when he was 41. It told of a club-footed medical student's romance with a slatternly waitress who disdained him. In 1946 Maugham presented the manuscript, valued by dealers at close to $50,000, to the Library of Congress in appreciation of America's hospitality.

Another success was "Miss Thompson," the short story about the prostitute and the preacher which John Colton and Clemence Randolph turned into the play "Rain," one of the perennial hits of the theater. Several movie versions were also made.

"Most of my life I've written for money, written what people want to read," Maugham said. His work was noted for clarity of expression, strong plot lines and ingenuity of plot development.

Noted Author Maugham Is Dead at 91

NICE, France (AP) — British author W. Somerset Maugham died early today at his beloved Riviera villa La Mauresque after he was returned there unconscious from a Nice hospital. He was 91 and suffered a stroke six days ago.

One of the world's most successful writers, Maugham wrote 30 plays, 26 novels and 120 short stories during a career that spanned more than a half-century. His last work, a memoir called "Looking Backward," was published in 1962. He gave up writing fiction in 1953 when he was 78.

Maugham was best known for his fiction that made him a fortune few writers have matched. His masterpiece was the novel "Of Human Bondage," published in 1915 when he was 41. It told of a club-footed medical student's romance with a slatternly waitress who disdained him. In 1946 Maugham presented the manuscript, valued by dealers at close to $50,000, to the Library of Congress in appreciation of America's hospitality.

Another success was "Miss Thompson," the short story about the prostitute and the preacher which John Colton and Clemence Randolph turned into the play "Rain," one of the perennial hits of the theater. Several movie versions were also made.

"Most of my life I've written for money, written what people want to read," Maugham said. His work was noted for clarity of expression, strong plot lines and ingenuity of plot development.

Woman Prisoner Is Hurt in Crash

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An unlikely combination of vehicles collided here Wednesday — a school bus (empty of pupils) and a sheriff's cruiser.

Bonnie Justice, 20, a young Laurelville mother being taken by Fairfield County officers to the women's reformatory at Marysville, suffered a serious head injury.

Fairfield County sheriff's deputy Elmer Bright, 32, of Pleasantville, the driver, and his wife Helen, 32, were also hospitalized with lesser injuries. Bus driver William Bell, 32, of Columbus escaped injury.

Africans . . .

zania and Guinea had gone through with the threatened action.

U.N. circles have accused the Africans of showing irresponsibility with demands for military force and other tough measures against Rhodesia which they are in no position to help carry out.

Some delegates felt that Wilson's attempt last month to reach a compromise with Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith's regime was crippled by the bickering resolutions put out by the General Assembly and the Security Council at the behest of the Asian-African group.

Britain has repeatedly rejected African demands that it employ military might to crush Smith's regime.

Viet Veteran Has Tearful Home Reunion

CINCINNATI (AP)—Cpl. Dennis Fields, a 22-year-old Marine toughened by 13 months of fighting in Viet Nam, made no effort to stop tears rolling down his cheeks.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Fields of suburban Reading, made no attempt to hide their tears—of happiness.

The occasion was a reunion Wednesday night in the studios of WKRC-TV. The parents had no idea their son was anywhere other than at Da Nang Air Force Base in Viet Nam.

The surprise Christmas reunion was arranged by the television station. The parents were brought to the studios under the guise of participating in a program honoring parents of Cincinnati area servicemen in Viet Nam.

"God must have gotten tired of listening to my prayers for his return," said Mrs. Fields.

Cpl. Fields will have a 34-day leave and said he was told that he will not be sent back to Viet Nam. His brother, Truman, 24, is stationed with the Marines in Okinawa, but will not be home for Christmas.

As they left, Cpl. Fields said, "Come on dad, I've got a whole lot to tell you about."

But his mother said, "I don't want to talk. I just want to sit and look at you, touch your hand, and thank God for the most wonderful moment in my life."

'Third Disease' Is New Target For Research

NEW YORK (AP) — Medical scientists are making more gains against fungus infections — the "third disease."

Bacteria and viruses long have been the major causes of human death and illness, but drugs and vaccines are bringing them under control.

Now the search is stepping up for better drugs and medicines to control or cure fungus ailments, which actually affect far more people than bacterial and viral diseases combined.

By one estimate, half of all people at some time or another suffer from some kind of superficial or external fungus infection that may cause itching, inflammation, scaling of skin or other woes.

And thousands more fall victim to serious internal or systemic fungus diseases which are often fatal.

There is some evidence that ailments caused by fungi — which are plant-like forms of life — are increasing, says Dr. John A. Leer of the Clinical Research Department of Schering Corp., Bloomfield, N.J.

The hunt for better drugs is worldwide.

One of the newest medications, tolnaftate — tradename Tinactin — rose from research begun 10 years ago by Japanese scientists who patiently tested 3,000 chemicals seeking one that would kill the fungi causing various skin infections. They turned up a chemical, from herbs, that looked promising.

Working on this lead, Schering chemists developed tolnaftate into a man-made prescription medication which physicians now credit with curing or controlling more than 80 per cent of cases of athlete's foot and some other common fungus infections of the skin. Itching or burning from athlete's foot is usually relieved within one to three days, and true athlete's foot is usually cured or controlled in seven to 21 days, reports Dr. Harry M. Robinson Jr., of the University of Maryland School of Medicine.

This new agent is not effective, however, against most fungus infections of the nails, nor against the fungus that causes moniliasis, a serious infection of the mouth, skin and some other body organs.

Less than a dozen types of families of fungi produce fatal systemic diseases that may involve the lungs, intestines, liver, bones or other organs and systems.

A main drug against the systemic fungi is an antibiotic, amphotericin B. But it sometimes produces undesirable side effects.

Two newer antibiotics are reported showing promising activity against some types of systemic fungus infections — one has the code name X5079C, the other is hamycin. Clinical studies to learn just what they can do are still under way.

In time, the "third disease" in its many forms may come under the lid of protective and curative drugs, like that put upon bacterial and viral infections.

Geauga Sheriff's Wife Is Fined for Fraud

CHARDON, Ohio (AP) — Audrey Robusky, wife of the Geauga County sheriff, was fined $1,500 today on charges of defrauding the county.

Judge Roland Pontius earlier overruled a motion for a new trial. Mrs. Robusky allegedly collected money from the county for meals for prisoners that never were served.

Migrants Are Uncharged, But Spend 82 Days in Jail

JEFFERSON, Ohio (AP) — Two Puerto Rican migrant workers aren't charged with a crime, but have spent the last 82 days in jail. A third man has been there over a month.

All were witnesses to a fatal shooting but don't have money to post bond, which is required under Ohio law to insure their appearance at the trial. They might be released by Christmas, however.

Angel Santiago, 24, and Jose Diaz, 26, have been in the Ash-tabula County Jail since Sept. 27. Another witness, Domingo Quilles, 28, has been in jail 36 days.

The three are waiting for the

Feb. 27 trial of Emilio Garcia, charged with first-degree murder in the fatal shooting of Juan Guadalupe-Flores last Sept. 12 in Ashtabula.

Bond was set at $1,000. The three said Wednesday they couldn't raise the money or couldn't afford lawyers.

"So we just sat in here," said Quilles, who has a wife and two children in Puerto Rico. Quilles said his wife had written him asking for money to pay for food and rent.

"I no can send her any," he said. "We get only $3 a day in here for witnesses fees."

Assistant County Prosecutor Charles Diamond said he has decided to take depositions from the men next Monday so they could be freed in time for Christmas.

Diamond said his office had no choice but to hold the men to insure their appearance at the trial. "These are transient people," he said. "If we had not held them we probably would never see them again."

Quilles said he and the other two men had been planning to return to Puerto Rico when they finished work at two migrant labor camps in Geneva.

'Third Disease' Is New Target For Research

NEW YORK (AP) — Medical scientists are making more gains against fungus infections — the "third disease."

Bacteria and viruses long have been the major causes of human death and illness, but drugs and vaccines are bringing them under control.

Now the search is stepping up for better drugs and medicines to control or cure fungus ailments, which actually affect far more people than bacterial and viral diseases combined.

By one estimate, half of all people at some time or another suffer from some kind of superficial or external fungus infection that may cause itching, inflammation, scaling of skin or other woes.

And thousands more fall victim to serious internal or systemic fungus diseases which are often fatal.

There is some evidence that ailments caused by fungi — which are plant-like forms of life — are increasing, says Dr. John A. Leer of the Clinical Research Department of Schering Corp., Bloomfield, N.J.

The hunt for better drugs is worldwide.

One of the newest medications, tolnaftate — tradename Tinactin — rose from research begun 10 years ago by Japanese scientists who patiently tested 3,000 chemicals seeking one that would kill the fungi causing various skin infections. They turned up a chemical, from herbs, that looked promising.

Working on this lead, Schering chemists developed tolnaftate into a man-made prescription medication which physicians now credit with curing or controlling more than 80 per cent of cases of athlete's foot and some other common fungus infections of the skin. Itching or burning from athlete's foot is usually relieved within one to three days, and true athlete's foot is usually cured or controlled in seven to 21 days, reports Dr. Harry M. Robinson Jr., of the University of Maryland School of Medicine.

This new agent is not effective, however, against most fungus infections of the nails, nor against the fungus that causes moniliasis, a serious infection of the mouth, skin and some other body organs.

Less than a dozen types of families of fungi produce fatal systemic diseases that may involve the lungs, intestines, liver, bones or other organs and systems.

A main drug against the systemic fungi is an antibiotic, amphotericin B. But it sometimes produces undesirable side effects.

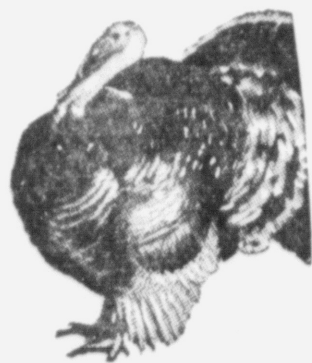

Two newer antibiotics are reported showing promising activity against some types of systemic fungus infections — one has the code name X5079C, the other is hamycin. Clinical studies to learn just what they can do are still under way.

In time, the "third disease" in its many forms may come under the lid of protective and curative drugs, like that put upon bacterial and viral infections.

Geauga Sheriff's Wife Is Fined For Fraud

CHARDON, Ohio (AP) — Audrey Robusky, wife of the Geauga County sheriff, was fined $1,500 today on charges of defrauding the county.

Judge Roland Pontius earlier overruled a motion for a new trial. Mrs. Robusky allegedly collected money from the county for meals for prisoners that never were served.

Evidence Is Lacking

Every so often, usually on the heels of some national scandal, reports begin to circulate of surveys which show students are more likely to cheat today than in the past. Good grades, so the rumors go, have become so important, the student with hope of going to college will do anything to achieve a good standing in his class.

Such stories are circulating widely again throughout the United States, purporting to indicate a further decline in the morals and philosophies of young people. But evidence, such as statistical tables comparing the present class with some previous one, is lacking.

To every adult generation, signs of cheating in the classroom always seem far worse than they did when it was the parent who was the student.

A natural enough phenomenon, when one thinks about it. But not many do.

Yes, students today have a stronger incentive to go to college than ever. This truism is demonstrated by the qualifications employers seek in new employees. And it certainly is harder to get in the top 10 Ivy League schools than formerly, although it never was easy.

But such facts do not prove the current class to be guilty of mass cheating. If such evidence exists, it must be in the possession of faculties which teach the students. And, if any instructor is now teaching who knows of widespread cheating in his classroom and who has done nothing to put an end to it, condemnation should be applied to those who teach, not those who learn.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Can the sun shining into an infant's eyes affect his eyesight? I was riding in our automobile with my four-week-old infant in a car crib. I did not realize that the sun was in his eyes until he began to cry. I am so worried, I'm afraid to tell my husband or to call my doctor.

Dear Mrs. L.: The possibility that your infant's eyes may have been injured by exposure to sunlight is virtually impossible.

The eyes have a built-in protective device. When the light is brilliant and sharp the pupil in the center of the eye closes down, almost to a pinpoint and keeps you from seeing.

You are punishing yourself for a "crime" you did not commit. Your feeling of guilt about this is so great that you cannot even share your husband with your husband. Had you expressed your concern to him, a simple telephone call to your doctor would have brought you the assurance that you so badly needed.

Many situations of major and minor medical importance constantly arise in the growth cycle of a child and a family. When you come face-to-face with them and discuss them openly with your husband and then with your physician the problems become solved and do not remain, as does this one.

as a source of emotional disturbance. I would like to find out about the nature of twins. I am about to marry a "twin" and want to badly to have some myself. There are eight sets of twins on his side and none on mine.

Dear Miss M.: You hopefully signed your note "happily yours." We add our good wishes for you to have twins, but there are scientific factors which more definitely determine the possibility.

Twins are born about once in 80-90 pregnancies. Triplets occur once in about 7,000. Quadruplets happen about once in a half a million. Multiple births tend to run in families as they did in your husband's. There is, however, no way for you to determine in advance whether or not you will have twins. Hoping may help.

The American Medical Association has created an excellent medalion which, when worn around the neck, ankle or wrist immediately alerts anyone to the illness engraved on it. People with diabetes, epilepsy, allergies to drugs and heart ailments should wear one, in addition to carrying a card filled with details about any chronic illnesses.

Ironies of History Multiply

By John Chamberlain

The ironies of history multiply. Perhaps the biggest irony of all is that America is being rejected as an "image" by the starving regions of the world at the very time when it is about to stage the most spectacular onslaught on the problem of hunger that mankind has ever seen.

On the one hand, we have the nations of Africa, Asia and Latin America, where the population explosion threatens in a few short years to outpace the ability of local farmers to sustain even the lowest standard of living. At present rates of increase the population of India will double within a generation. Yet India is already threatened with a famine. It imports some 8,000,000 tons of wheat from the outside world each year, and if the U. S. were to withdraw "food for peace" and there would be riots in every major Indian city. Soviet Russia, struggling with a recalcitrant peasantry, has already bought some 9,000,000 tons of grain and flour in 1965, and may have to buy more before the winter is out.

So what is needed in countries like India is a huge capital investment in fertilizer plants. One estimate is that the underdeveloped countries could absorb $5 billion in synthetic ammonia manufacturing capacity in the next decade or so. Synthetic ammonia is the basis of a quick-acting fertilizer which can go into the soil in solid or liquid forms.

The needed ammonia plants are not going to be built in India or in Latin America or in Africa for the simple reason that these parts of the world either frown on capitalistic reasons or have such shaky political systems that they offer no long-term security for foreign investors. True enough, governments can build or buy synthetic ammonia plants on their own. But they need capital for the job and, as Khrushchev found out when he tried to get a fertilizer program off the ground in Soviet Russia, this is hard to squeeze out of a socialist economy. Furthermore, the U. S. while it has been willing to provide capital and technical help to needy foreign governments, is having trouble with its Senator Wayne Morse in keeping foreign aid going at present levels, to say nothing of providing for a massive fertilizer development.

While the underdeveloped world starves for lack of nitrates for fertilizer, the U. S., which already overproduces its crops, is about to go off on a great spree of ammonia plant building. According to the Trade Information Council, "Chemical Week," the total capacity of U. S. synthetic ammonia production will grow from today's 8.5 million tons a year to a whopping 17 million tons without a period of less than thirty months. Everybody seems to be getting into the act, from steel companies with coke by-products to utilize to oil companies looking to upgrade their refinery products. The old-line chemical companies are naturally trying to keep pace with their newer competitors who are in the petrochemical field. The rush to get new synthetic ammonia capacity has been a by-product of the development of a new process that may cut production costs by as much as fifty per cent.

Ever since World War II American farmers have been drenching their land with the new nitrate fertilizers in their race to conjure more and more production out of constantly shrinking acreage allotments. Last year the farmers used an average of thirty-six pounds of ammonia on about 300 million acres, which was about five times the annual average used per acre on more than 345 million acres in 1950. As a result, the efforts of the U. S. Department of Agriculture to control the production of wheat and cotton were thoroughly defeated.

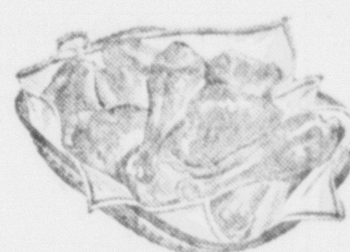

So the farmers of America don't really need new sources of fertilizer. The doubling of our nitrate capacity will leave plenty of ammonia for export, or it will permit U. S. wheat growers to provide an extra surplus of grain to send to India and Soviet Russia. The only difficulty here is that the socialist economies have nothing to give us in exchange for either wheat or nitrates.

No doubt the world will survive despite the crazy imbalances that beset it. But surely everybody would be better off if the socialist nations would only give up socialism and invite capitalistic synthetic ammonia producers to build the new plants where they are needed.

"When I was a kid I ate whatever was put in front of me."

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLMAN, M.D.

Can the sun shining into an infant's eyes affect his eyesight? I was riding in our automobile with my four-week-old infant in a car crib. I did not realize that the sun was in his eyes until he began to cry. I am so worried, I'm afraid to tell my husband or to call my doctor.

Mrs. D. L., Illinois
Dear Mrs. L.: The possibility that your infant's eyes may have been injured by exposure to sunlight is virtually impossible.

The eyes have a built-in protective device. When the light is brilliant and sharp the pupil in the center of the eye closes down, almost to a pinpoint and keeps out the light.

You are punishing yourself for a "crime" you did not commit.

Your feeling of guilt about this is so great that you cannot even share your distress with your husband. Had you expressed your concern to him, a simple telephone call to your doctor would have brought you the assurance that you so badly needed.

Many situations of major and minor medical importance constantly arise in the growth cycle of a child and a family. When you come face-to-face with them and discuss them openly with your husband and then with your physician the problems become solved and do not remain, as does this one.

as a source of emotional disturbance.

I would like to find out about the nature of twins. I am about to marry a "twin" and want to badly to have some myself. There are eight sets of twins on his side and none on mine.

Miss F. M., Conn.
Dear Miss M.: You charmingly signed your note "hopefully yours." We add our good wishes for you to have twins, but there are scientific factors which more definitely determine the possibility.

Twins are born about once in 80-90 pregnancies. Triplets occur once in about 7,000. Quadruplets happen about once in a half a million.

Multiple births tend to run in families as they did in your husband's. There is, however, no way for you to determine in advance whether or not you will have twins. Hoping may help.

The American Medical Association has created an excellent medalion which, when worn around the neck, ankle or wrist immediately alerts anyone to the illness engraved on it. People with diabetes, epilepsy, allergies to drugs and heart ailments should wear one, in addition to carrying a card filled with details about any chronic illnesses.

Ironies of History Multiply

By John Chamberlain

The ironies of history multiply. Perhaps the biggest irony of all is that America is being rejected as an "image" by the starving regions of the world at the very time when it is about to stage the most spectacular onslaught on the problem of hunger that mankind has ever seen.

On the one hand, we have the nations of Africa, Asia and Latin America, where the population explosion threatens in a few short years to outpace the ability of local farmers to sustain even the lowest standard of living. At present rates of increase the population of India will double within a generation. Yet India is already threatened with a famine. It imports some 8,000,000 tons of wheat from the outside world each year, and if the U. S. were to withdraw "food for peace" and there would be riots in every major Indian city. Soviet Russia, struggling with a recalcitrant peasantry, has already bought some 9,000,000 tons of grain and flour in 1965, and may have to buy more before the winter is out.

So what is needed in countries like India is a huge capital investment in fertilizer plants. One estimate is that the underdeveloped countries could absorb $5 billion in synthetic ammonia manufacturing capacity in the next decade or so. Synthetic ammonia is the basis of ammonium nitrate, which is a quick-acting fertilizer that can go into the soil in solid or liquid forms.

The needed ammonia plants are not going to be built in India or in Latin America or in Africa for the simple reason that these parts of the world either frown on capitalistic development for ideological reasons or have such shaky political systems that they offer no long-term security for foreign investors. True enough, governments can build or buy synthetic ammonia plants on their own. But they need capital for the job and, as Khrushchev found out when he tried to get a fertilizer program off the ground in Soviet Russia, this is hard to squeeze out of a socialist economy. Furthermore, the U. S., while it has been willing to provide capital and technical help to needy foreign governments, is having trouble with its Senator Wayne Morse in keeping foreign aid going at present levels, to say nothing of providing for a massive fertilizer development.

While the underdeveloped world starves for lack of nitrates for fertilizer, the U. S., which already overproduces its crops, is about to go off on a great spree of ammonia plant building. According to the trade publication, "Chemical Week," the total capacity of U. S. synthetic ammonia production will grow from today's 8.5 million tons a year to a whopping 17 million tons without a period of less than thirty months. Everybody seems to be getting into the act, from steel companies with coke by-products to utilize to oil companies looking to upgrade their refinery products. The old-line chemical companies are naturally trying to keep pace with their newer competitors who are in the petrochemical field. The rush to get new synthetic ammonia plants built has been sparked by the development of a new process that may cut production costs by as much as fifty per cent.

Ever since World War II American farmers have been drenching their land with the new nitrate fertilizers in their race to conjure more and more production out of constantly shrinking acreage allotments. Last year the farmers used an average of thirty-six pounds of ammonia on about 300 million acres, which was about five times the annual average used per acre on more than 345 million acres in 1950. As a result, the efforts of the U. S. Department of Agriculture to control the production of wheat and cotton were thoroughly defeated.

So the farmers of America don't really need new sources of fertilizer. The doubling of our nitrate capacity will leave plenty of ammonia for export, or it will permit U. S. wheat growers to provide an extra surplus of grain to send to India and Soviet Russia. The only difficulty here is that the socialist economies have nothing to give us in exchange for either wheat or nitrates.

No doubt the world will survive despite the crazy imbalances that beset it. But surely everybody would be better off if the socialist nations would only give up socialism and in the chemical field. The rush to get new synthetic ammonia plants built has been sparked by the development of a new process that may cut production costs by as much as fifty per cent.

Ohio Rural Church Faces Crisis, Researcher Says

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's rural churches face a crisis—and many will die if there is not a reorganization of congregations, facilities and service, a rural sociologist declares.

Dr. John B. Mitchell, professor of agricultural economics and rural sociology and extension rural sociologist at Ohio State University sees the crisis.

He has been studying the role of the church in rural areas and the effects socio-economic changes have on the so-called "crossroads congregation."

Dr. Mitchell explained that the "over-churching" of rural areas and the many problems which result from it are well documented.

"The United States was settled by people with diverse backgrounds, beliefs and ways of life," he said. "Religious freedom and a Protestant tradition encouraged the growth of denominations and sects."

Now, he pointed out, radical changes in transportation and communication have necessitated adjustments in all segments of society. The general store, the one-room school, the community institute, fraternal or-ers, and in many cases grange and township halls have largely disappeared from the rural scene, he said, adding: "But the rural church remains."

He said in a study of congregations in Tuscarawas, Harrison, Guernsey and Coshocton counties, he and Prof. Leon C. Neher of Manchester (Ind.) College uncovered a variety of problems which they believe will cause many churches to die by default unless some action is taken.

"Adequate facilities, programs, and vitality often seemed lacking to the extent that congregations failed to challenge or minister to their potential constituency," Mitchell says. "Christian education and community programs were particularly deficient."

Many churches, he said, did not have active support from many of their members. Nearly half of those interviewed had never been to Sunday School in the past year, and one of every three persons had attended preaching services three-fourths or more of the time.

More than half said they contributed $2 or less per week to a congregation.

17½-Ounce Baby Develops into Very Talented Boy

By HOPE STRONG
Lima News Women's Editor
LIMA, Ohio (AP) — Michael Gerard Wrasman has been an unusual boy from the moment he was born.

He weighed just 17½ ounces at birth Nov. 2, 1960, and survival meant beating 1,000 to 1 odds.

But he did more than just survive. At three he had memorized numbers and could add. At four he had learned the alphabet.

Today, at five, he reads and is working his way through a Christmas gift catalogue.

"He is very inquisitive," his mother, Mrs. Ruth Wrasman, says.

"He's got a memory that just won't quit," says his father, Melvin. "You tell him once and he'll always remember it."

"He remembers much better than we do."

Mike's pediatrician is less reserved: "I think he might be a genius."

But Mike says: "I just like to smile . . . and imitate the Beatles. You know 'I love you . . . yea, yea, yea'."

Mike is believed to be the smallest baby ever born in a

Lima hospital to have survived. He was only 13 inches long and fit neatly into a doctor's hand. Doctors then said two pounds, two ounces was considered the usual minimum weight for a baby to survive and estimated Mike's chances—at about half that weight—at a thousand to one.

For four months, Mike was kept in a hospital and was fed a special formula. Gradually he grew and by his first birthday he weighed 17 pounds.

Now, at five, he is a healthy 35 pounds.

"I certainly was a teeny, tiny baby," he says, pointing to a photo taken soon after his birth.

Physically, he is a bit weak and not too well coordinated, with 35 pounds on a 45-inch frame. He is near-sighted and wears glasses, but his parents report his health "is generally good."

It's Mike's mind, more than his body, which amazes his parents.

He learned the alphabet on building-block letters.

"Then he started spelling out words phonetically," explains his father, an engineer, "and pretty soon he was reading."

Mrs. Wrasman, a former school teacher, says the parents try to treat Mike normally and haven't tried to teach him.

"But," she says, "what can you do when he asks questions all the time?"

Disabled Vets To Ask Higher Viet Benefits

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The Disabled American Veterans (DAV), a national organization of former servicemen, said today it will seek benefits for Americans serving in Viet Nam that will exceed those proposed by Rep. Olin Teague, D-Tex.

A spokesman for DAV's national headquarters here announced also that Claude L. Callagary, national commander, would arrive in Saigon today for a firsthand look at the Viet Nam war.

Schools Use Steel For Flexibility

By ELEANOR ROSS

The little red school house is fast disappearing from the American scene and is being replaced rapidly with modern steel structures.

Changing techniques of teaching account for the shift, according to an industrial designer, Dave Chapman, who once was president of the American Society of Industrial Designers, and who has devoted almost half of his 30 year designing career to the field of school interior design.

In the days of the little red school house, he explained, children were taught as a group. Today, he said, the emphasis is on the individual student and the new philosophy of teaching depends on its mobile and visible character.

Flexibility is the theme. Everything about the school must be flexible — from the furniture to the building itself. The designer explained that the job can't be done with what he terms "eggcrate architecture" — the designer's designation of bricks and mortar. Steel, he stated, gives the necessary type of flexibility in design and structure. These, in turn, must be complemented by extreme versatility and flexibility of school furniture and equipment.

Chairs and desks are made of tubular steel. Cabinets are vinyl - coated steel. Even the old slate blackboard has been replaced by colored chalk boards made of porcelain - enameled steel.

The furniture is no longer screwed to the floor in the new buildings. New it must be both movable and versatile.

The school architecture is somewhat like a hollow box. The steel walls are actually adjustable partitions, which are tailored to the load of education. (Even the community is unaware of how big that future load will be.) The interior walls may be moved as frequently as four times a day. This is something, the designer explained, that can be achieved only with steel, not concrete.

When it comes to school buildings, steel cuts taxpayers' costs. This is accomplished by the mass production of modular parts like prefabricated panels, I-beams, nailable framing units, steel doors and windows. The principle is the same as with autos and appliances. If each had to be constructed individually, the cost would be considerably greater.

Nearly 13 million youngsters ride the buses to and from school daily. This fact, coupled with a 200 per cent increase in accidents involving school children in the last decade, underscores the need for safe, sturdy and economical shelters.

School districts in many sections of the country are responding to this situation with bus shelters made of galvanized steel with enamel coatings.

The shelters, assembled by simply pushing together overlapping wall and roof edges, are fireproof, vandal - resistant and designed to resist winds, even those of hurricane force.

In addition, they are easily transportable from one location to another.

Use only the colored part of the skin when you grate orange or lemon rind; the white part under the color is bitter.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren
A Dull Merry-Go-Round

DEAR ABBY: I am 28 and happily married. My 25-year-old brother is able-bodied, intelligent, and unemployed. He lives at home and lets my parents support him. They buy his clothes, give him spending money and provide him with a car. He sleeps until noon, leaves his room a mess, and then takes off to play pool with his unemployed buddies all day. He tells my folks he's job-hunting. This has been going on for six months. My mother calls me constantly, moaning and groaning about how inconsiderate my brother is. He either doesn't show up for meals, or he brings home four or five free-loaders for a meal. All my advice to him has been ignored, and my advice to my mother (to throw him out) has also fallen on deaf ears. What more can I do?

Schools Use Steel
For Flexibility

By ELEANOR ROSS

The little red school house is fast disappearing from the American scene and is being replaced rapidly with modern steel structures.

Changing techniques of teaching account for the shift, according to an industrial designer, Dave Chapman, who once was president of the American Society of Industrial Designers, and who has devoted almost half of his 30 year designing career to the field of school interior design.

In the days of the little red school house, he explained, children were taught as a group. Today, he said, the emphasis is on the individual student and the new philosophy of teaching depends on its mobile and visible character.

Flexibility is the theme. Everything about the school must be flexible — from the furniture to the walls and even to the building itself. The designer explained that the job can't be done with what he terms "eggcrate architecture" — the designer's designation of bricks and mortar. Steel, he stated, gives the necessary type of flexibility in design and structure. These, in turn, must be complemented by extreme versatility and flexibility of school furniture and equipment.

Chairs and desks are made of tubular steel. Cabinets are vinyl-coated steel. Even the old slate blackboard has been replaced by colored chalk boards made of porcelain-enameled steel.

The furniture is no longer screwed to the floor in the new buildings. Now it must be both movable and versatile.

The school architecture is somewhat like a hollow box. The steel walls are actually adjustable partitions, which are tailored to the load of education. (Even the community is unaware of how big that future load will be.) The interior walls may be moved as frequently as four times a day. This is something, the designer explained, that can be achieved only with steel, not concrete.

When it comes to school buildings, steel cuts taxpayers' costs. This is accomplished by the mass production of modular parts like prefabricated panels, I-beams, available framing units, steel doors and windows. The principle is the same as with autos and appliances. If each had to be constructed individually, the cost would be considerably greater.

Nearly 13 million youngsters ride the buses to and from school daily. This fact, coupled with a 200 per cent increase in accidents involving school children in the last decade, underscores the need for safe, sturdy and economical shelters.

School districts in many sections of the country are responding to this situation with bus shelters made of galvanized steel with enamel coatings.

The shelters, assembled by simply pushing together overlapping wall and roof edges, are fireproof, vandal-resistant and designed to resist winds, even those of hurricane force.

In addition, they are easily transportable from one location to another.

Use only the colored part of the skin when you grate orange or lemon rind; the white part under the color is bitter.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

A Dull Merry-Go-Round

DEAR ABBY: I am 28 and happily married. My 25-year-old brother is able-bodied, intelligent, and unemployed. He lives at home and lets my parents support him. They buy his clothes, give him spending money and provide him with a car. He sleeps until noon, leaves his room a mess, and then takes off to play pool with his unemployed buddies all day. He tells my folks he's job-hunting. This has been going on for six months. My mother calls me constantly, moaning and groaning about how inconsiderate my brother is. He either doesn't show up for meals, or he brings home four or five free-loaders for a meal. All my advice to him has been ignored, and my advice to my mother (to throw him out) has also fallen on deaf ears. What more can I do?

"AUS-GESPIELT!"
DEAR "AUS-GESPIELT": If a 25-year-old man chooses to be a bum, it's unfortunate, but his mother doesn't have to help him. You've done all you can. Ask your mother to give you

Personals

Mrs. Bernard Savey, Route 1, Lockbourne, president of the Soliqua Garden Club, Ashville, was guest speaker for a Christmas dinner and meeting of the Tallawanda Garden Club, Darrtown. Her discussion on Christmas ideas was entitled, "What Gives? — Objects Seen Every-day, Used in a Different Way." She displayed and showed how to make many articles out of things that are thrown away.

Suzanne Gibson, Route 2, has been accepted as a student at the Ohio State School of Cosmetology, Columbus. She will attend for approximately eight months prior to receiving a State license.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Carter and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Lovenshimer of Tarlton, and Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Rife Dum of Circleville, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Majar McCallister, Columbus.

Ever serve poached eggs on toast spread with deviled ham? Nice for Sunday brunch.

one good reason why the lazy lout should go to work when he's never had it so good.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who fancies herself as an expert dessert-maker. Whenever I invite her to my home for dinner, she insists on bringing the dessert and, of course, I have to serve it to my guests or she will be insulted. Abby, I hate to appear ungrateful, but this woman's desserts are not fit to eat. It isn't only my opinion. My guests will take a token bite and I can see that they have great difficulty and are choking it down.

Meanwhile, my lovely dessert remains in the kitchen. How can I get out of serving my friend's offerings without hurting her feelings? She's a nice person and I wouldn't offend her for the world, but this problem is getting me down.

OMIT NAME
DEAR OMIT: Next time you invite this woman to your home for dinner, tell her that you appreciate her generosity, but please to refrain from bringing anything, as your menu is complete. If she ignores your request and brings something anyway, serve yours and hers, too.

DEAR ABBY: Your suggestion that asking school children to make a "Family Tree" is an invasion of privacy, has drawn a great deal of fire, pro and con. Regarding the one from "PROUD" IN VIRGINIA, who was thrilled and tickled to find proof of her "noble" ancestry, making her eligible to join the DAR:

It was Daniel Webster who said, "It is only shallow-minded pretenders who make distinguished origin a matter of personal merit." Voltaire said it better: "Whoever serves his country well has no need of ancestors."

Still a better one by Ovid: "Birth and ancestry, and that which we have not ourselves achieved, we can scarcely call our own." And perhaps the best of all, by the English poet, Sir Thomas Overbury (1581-1613), who was poisoned in the Tower: "The man who has nothing to boast of but his illustrious ancestry is like a potato — the only good belonging to him is underground."

Paint Crew Very Proud Of Golden Gate Bridge

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — There's an almost mystical attraction to the Golden Gate Bridge, at least for the painters who climb to fearsome heights daily to renew its world-famed orange glow.

"The bridge grows on you; it becomes part of you," says Hale Sharrett, a husky ex-Navy man who supervises a 40-man painting crew.

The painting boss replaces his calm, steady gaze with a look of surprise when asked why a person would work at heights up to 746 feet above swirling riptides.

"Why this is the Golden Gate Bridge you're talking about, not just any bridge!" he exclaims.

This magnetism has also drawn millions of tourists — and 286 known suicides — in the bridge's 28-year history.

It also thrills drivers and passengers who cross the 4,200-foot suspension bridge, says James Adam, general manager of the bridge. Some 345 million vehicles have crossed the bridge since it opened in 1937.

Another 1.5 million pedestrians have strolled the bridge's walkways, usually in couples, or families, almost always with cameras. Only rarely will they see the painters, who usually are specks high up on the towers, or hidden from view under the deck.

The painters continuously paint its 10 million square feet of deck, towers, supports and cables.

The bridge, second in length by only 50 feet to New York's new Verrazano Narrows Bridge, is on its fifth complete painting. Each paint job is done completely by hand brushing, using successive coats of red lead primer, intermediate brown and its public face, international orange.

The outer color is a reddish-orange hue that sometimes dazes tourists who expect a golden color. Orange was selected from the start because of superior visibility, durability and harmony with surrounding hills of green and brown. The bridge's name was taken from the harbor entrance, the Golden Gate.

The bridge's appeal draws far more applicants than can be used in the painting crew.

"Our men have been on the job an average of 15 years," Sharrett says, "so you see we don't have many vacancies. But we get about two new applicants a day."

The supervisor, a 19-year veteran who worked up from rookie painter, says he can tell in a day whether a new man is scared.

"I think it's fair to say one must have 'iron nerves' for this job," he declares. "We have had would-be painters freeze on the railing."

Besides iron nerves, the painter must also have two years' experience as a journeyman painter and one year of painting structural steel or bridges at considerable heights.

The jobs, which pay $800 a month, are demanding mostly because of "terrible weather — foggy in summer and windy in winter," Sharrett says.

Despite painting eight hours, five days a week — covering 1,200 square feet of flat surface or 400 square feet of cables on an average day — the men don't feel bored.

"It's a long way from being a dull job," Sharrett asserts. "There's something different every day. We've had wrecks, fires, jumpers — anything can happen on the bridge."

"There have been several instances where painters have rescued would-be suicides," says Sharrett's boss, the maintenance superintendent, R. D. Mullins.

"If the painters see the suicide on the railing," Mullins said, "maybe we can get there in time, since the jumper usually goes over the railing and stands on the beams underneath, then jumps."

Sharrett again assumed a look of surprise when asked what thoughts run through his mind at the top of a tower, 75 stories above water, even though he is protected by a safety belt, an emergency net and good sense from a plunge to certain death.

"Nothing—you think of nothing up there," he said.

If painters do think, he said, it's in terms of safety, not danger.

"We have an excellent safety record. Not one painter has fallen to his death."

A worker is automatically fired if he isn't wearing his safety belt on the job, Sharrett said. Large rope nets follow the men as they work.

The nets are similar to the type that caught and saved the lives of 19 workmen when the bridge was being built. Ten workers were killed near the end of construction, however, when a scaffold gave way and ripped a safety net apart. Two other workers, not painters, died under similar circumstances a decade ago.

The bridge itself was built to withstand earthquakes, a matter of vital importance in a city that still measures all earth tremors by its great earthquake of 1906.

The bridge also is designed to withstand a side away totaling 27.7 feet and an up-and-down sway of 11.8 feet. It rode out its most severe test, a 69-mile-per-hour windstorm in 1951, with an up-and-down buckling of about 10 feet.

The bridge was closed nearly three hours then, the only time it has not been in full operation.

Farm Bureau OKs Food for Needy Policy

CHICAGO (AP)—The American Farm Bureau Federation urged today that the United States continue to provide food for needy areas abroad.

Future donations would be financed by funds the government now uses to pay farmers for complying with federal crop production and farm price control programs.

Under resolutions submitted to delegates for approval at today's closing session of the big farm organization's annual convention, farm payments would be dropped. They now total about $3.5 billion a year.

This means that under the Farm Bureau plan, foreign food aid programs, would add no new burdens on taxpayers. Money from funds now used for subsidies to farmers would be turned over to needy countries for purchase of essential foods in this country.

The Farm Bureau leaders figure that foreign demand will increase, making it necessary over the years ahead to increase production and per-

News of World in Brief

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—State Health Director Emmett W. Arnold urged local health departments today to prohibit sale of imported drink coolers commonly called "ice balls."

Arnold said Health Department laboratory tests had found "gross pollution" in water inside the plastic balls imported from Hong Kong and Japan.

RIPLEY, Ohio (AP)—A huge cross was burned Wednesday night in front of historic Rankin House, part of the Underground Railroad during the early 1800s and now a state memorial. The Ripley Fire Department said it received a call that the house was on fire, but on investigating found it to be the cross.

Authorities said the 12-foot cross had to be carried about a half-mile to the house.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—State Treasurer John D. Herbert today became the next-to-last member of the Republican state administration to announce for re-election in the 1966 primary election.

Only Gov. James A. Rhodes remains among the Republican state office holders to announce, and he has indicated he would do that early next year.

ASHTABULA, Ohio (AP)—Ohio's major problems are rooted to unemployment and education, Lt. Gov. John W. Brown said today at a groundbreaking for a new $2.4 million branch of Kent State University.

The two are linked together, Brown said. "Our major unemployment problem today is due to lack of job skills."

He called for "vigorous effort" by public officials and citizens to prevent need in the future for retraining high school graduates so they can get jobs.

The permanent two year campus to accommodate 1,000 fulltime and 2,000 part-time students is scheduled to open in the fall of 1966.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Arts Council, newly appointed by Gov. James A. Rhodes and with 15 members representing all areas of the state, expects to appoint a full-time executive director soon.

This developed Wednesday at the group's first organization

session. J. Ralph Corbett, chairman, explained the council as a "state-wide group organized to bring arts to all communities and coordinate the advancement of cultural arts."

Ohio becomes one of 35 states which organized arts councils. The federal government will provide $25,000 so the council can survey cultural activities.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Reserve Board says the nation's industrial production reached a record level of 145.5 in November with gains reported in almost every sector of the economy.

The figure means that production for the month was 45.5 percent above the average level during the 1957-59 base period. The October figure was 144.4 on the board's index, compared with a previous estimate of 143.6.

The board said Wednesday the November 1965 figure compared with 135.4 in November 1964.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican leaders proposed today a system of revenue-sharing that would return some federal tax money to the states in grants for unspecified government purposes.

The GOP Coordinating Committee recommended that program be coupled with a series of functional grants, earmarked for welfare, education, public health and the like, but not for specific state projects.

The policy-writing committee, in a report approved Monday and published today, said that would leave the states free to determine where their federal aid money is most urgently needed.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A group of about 100 mothers marched to the White House gates Wednesday to deliver an estimated 75,000 Christmas cards urging President Johnson to bring peace in Viet Nam by Christmas.

The group, sponsored by the Women's Strikes for Peace, was met at the gate by presidential representative Donald Ropa, a member of the staff of the National Security Council.

He told the women that sending U.S. troops to Viet Nam "is the hardest decision any president, particularly President Johnson, can make. It gives him no pleasure to make it."

WASHINGTON (AP)—Broadway producer David Merrick came to Washington Wednesday and renewed his running assault on theater critics.

Asked at the National Press Club if he thought critics were becoming more or less astute, he replied:

"How could they become less astute?"

"Critics are, I'm afraid, reviewing for their own taste with little regard for the public," Merrick said. "They have the pompous theory that they are going to pump up public taste, but in the last three or four years the public has not been paying much attention."

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Fledgling trombonist Barry Goldwater has a bet going with his family.

The 1964 Republican presidential candidate has wagered he'll be able to play "Silent Night" on his horn by Christmas Eve.

Goldwater has been practicing day and night, and family members say it's fortunate there are no neighbors within earshot.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Blind pianist George Shearing entered University Hospital Wednesday with what hospital officials called a "slight hemorrhage in his gastro-intestinal tract." He was listed in satisfactory condition.

Shearing's Los Angeles accountant, Larry Stern, said the musician was taking medical tests to determine the cause of the hemorrhage.

Shearing is in Utah for an engagement at a Salt Lake City night club.

Pioneer 6 Satellite Is Put in Orbit

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—A heavily instrumented satellite called Pioneer 6 cruised in a complex orbit around the sun today and began sweeping up information that will guide future astronauts traveling between planets.

The drum-shaped spacecraft soared aloft at 2:32 a.m. (EST) from Cape Kennedy on top of a souped-up Delta rocket.

Two seconds after the spinning satellite was set in position about 345 miles above Africa, some 4,900 miles from Cape Kennedy, three spindly arms were deployed from its radio command from the ground turned on a gas jet at the end of one arm, orienting Pioneer 6 so its signals could be received on earth.

"Engineering data shows that all parts of the spacecraft are operating normally," said Charles F. Hall, Pioneer program manager from the Ames Research Center at Mountain View, Calif.

The shiny spacecraft will study characteristics of the solar "windstream" which consists of electrically charged gases that boil off from the sun's gravitational field at supersonic speeds.

Pioneer 6 is in an elliptical orbit around the sun between the orbital paths of Earth and Venus.

Project officials said its useful lifetime would be about six months.

SOUTH COURT

South Court St. Parent-Teachers Assn. featured its annual Christmas program during this week's meeting in the multipurpose room.

The program was "A Story of the Christmas Carols." The reader was Dennis Shaw with Nedra Dresbach as Mary, David Pontius as Joseph, Debra Callihan as the Angel, and Jeffrey Walisa, Steven Brungs and John Ankrom as the Three Kings.

The carols were sung by the Elementary Chorus and Seventh Grade Girls Chorus. The program was under the direction of Clifford Kerns, Paul Dunkel and Mrs. Merle Collins.

On the afternoon of Dec. 22 each class will have a Christmas party. Seventh grade students will have a carol sing prior to refreshments.

Pioneer 6 Satellite Is Put in Orbit

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — A heavily instrumented satellite called Pioneer 6 cruised in a complex orbit around the sun today and began sweeping up information that will guide future astronauts traveling between planets.

The drum-shaped spacecraft soared aloft at 2:32 a.m. (EST) from Cape Kennedy on top of a souped-up Delta rocket.

Two seconds after the spinning satellite was set in position about 345 miles above Africa, some 4,900 miles from Cape Kennedy, three spindly arms were deployed from it. Radio command from the ground turned on a gas jet at the end of one arm, orienting Pioneer 6 so its signals could be received on earth.

"Engineering data shows that all parts of the spacecraft are operating normally," said Charles F. Hall, Pioneer program manager from the Ames Research Center at Mountain View, Calif.

The shiny spacecraft will study characteristics of the solar "windstream" which consists of electrically charged gases that boil off from the sun's gravitational field at supersonic speeds.

Pioneer 6 is in an elliptical orbit around the sun between the orbital paths of Earth and Venus.

Project officials said its useful lifetime would be about six months.

Sales, Motor Tax Receipts Show Jump

Both sales and motor vehicle tax collections in Pickaway County for the two-week period ending Dec. 11 showed a marked increase, according to a report from John Herbst, state treasurer.

Sales tax collections during the period were up $9,109.05. The report listed receipts for the current year at $31,696.16, compared to $22,587.11 collected during a similar period in 1964.

Sales tax collections for the fiscal year, which begins July 1, are $151,277.51. A year ago total receipts were $160,251.06.

Motor vehicle tax collections show an increase of $3,029.52. The receipts for the two week period this year were $10,486.34. Last year the report listed receipts at $7,456.84.

For the current fiscal year, motor vehicle tax collections are $131,370.04 compared to $117,985.74 last year.

Farm Bureau OKs Food for Needy Policy

CHICAGO (AP)—The American Farm Bureau Federation urged today that the United States continue to provide food for needy areas abroad.

Future donations would be financed by funds the government now uses to pay farmers for complying with federal crop production and farm price control programs.

Under resolutions submitted to delegates for approval at today's closing session of the big farm organization's annual convention, farm payments would be dropped. They now total about $3.5 billion a year.

This means that under the Farm Bureau plan, foreign food aid programs, would add no new burdens on taxpayers. Money from funds now used for subsidies to farmers would be turned over to needy countries for purchase of essential foods in this country.

The Farm Bureau leaders figure that foreign demand will increase making it necessary over the years ahead to increase production and per-

News of World in Brief

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Health Director Emmett W. Arnold urged local health departments today to prohibit sale of imported drink coolers commonly called "ice balls."

Arnold said Health Department laboratory tests had found "gross pollution" in water inside the plastic balls imported from Hong Kong and Japan.

RIPLEY, Ohio (AP)—A huge cross was burned Wednesday night in front of historic Rankin House, part of the Underground Railroad during the early 1800s and now a state memorial. The Ripley Fire Department said it received a call that the house was on fire, but on investigating found it to be the cross.

Authorities said the 12-foot cross had to be carried about a half-mile to the house.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Treasurer John D. Herbst today became the next-to-last member of the Republican state administration to announce the federal government will nounce for re-election in the 1966 primary election.

Only Gov. James A. Rhodes remains among the Republican state office holders to announce, and he has indicated he would do that early next year.

ASHTABULA, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's major problems are rooted to unemployment and education, Lt. Gov. John W. Brown said today at a groundbreaking for a new $2.4 million branch of Kent State University.

"The two are linked together," Brown said. "Our major unemployment problem today is due to lack of job skills."

He called for "vigorous effort" by public officials and citizens to prevent need in the future for retraining high school graduates so they can get jobs.

The permanent two year campus to accommodate 1,000 fulltime and 2,000 part-time students is scheduled to open in the fall of 1966.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Arts Council, newly appointed by Gov. James A. Rhodes and with 15 members representing all areas of the state, expects to appoint a full-time executive director soon.

This developed Wednesday at the group's first organization

session. J. Ralph Corbett, chairman, explained the council as a "state-wide group organized to bring arts to all communities and coordinate the advancement of cultural arts."

Ohio becomes one of 35 states which organized arts councils. The federal government will provide $25,000 so the council can survey cultural activities.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board says the nation's industrial production reached a record level of 145.5 in November with gains reported in almost every sector of the economy.

The figure means that production for the month was 45.5 percent above the average level during the 1957-59 base period. The October figure was 144.4 on the board's index, compared with a previous estimate of 143.6.

The board said Wednesday the November 1965 figure compared with 135.4 in November 1964.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Republican leaders proposed today a system of revenue-sharing that would return some federal tax money to the states in grants for unspecified government purposes.

The GOP Coordinating Committee recommended that program be coupled with a series of functional grants, earmarked for welfare, education, public health and the like, but not for specific state projects.

The policy-writing committee, in a report approved Monday and published today, said that would leave the states free to determine where their federal aid money is most urgently needed.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of about 100 mothers marched to the White House gates Wednesday to deliver an estimated 75,000 Christmas cards urging President Johnson to bring peace in Viet Nam by Christmas.

The group, sponsored by the Women's Strikes for Peace, was met at the gate by presidential representative Donald Ropa, a member of the staff of the National Security Council.

He told the women that sending U.S. troops to Viet Nam "is the hardest decision any president, particularly President Johnson, can make. It gives him no pleasure to make it."

WASHINGTON (AP)—Broadway producer David Merrick came to Washington Wednesday and renewed his running assault on theater critics.

Asked at the National Press Club if he thought critics were becoming more or less astute, he replied:

"How could they become less astute?"

"Critics are, I'm afraid, reviewing for their own taste with little regard for the public," Merrick said. "They have the pompous theory that they are going to pump up public taste, but in the last three or four years the public has not been paying much attention."

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Fledgling trombonist Barry Goldwater has a bet going with his family.

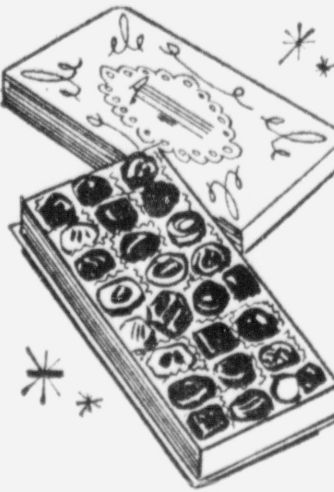

The 1964 Republican presidential candidate has wagered he'll be able to play "Silent Night" on his horn by Christmas Eve.

Goldwater has been practicing day and night, and family members say it's fortunate there are no neighbors within earshot.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Blind pianist George Shearing entered University Hospital Wednesday with what hospital officials called a "slight hemorrhage in his gastro-intestinal tract." He was listed in satisfactory condition.

Shearing's Los Angeles accountant, Larry Stern, said the musician was taking medical tests to determine the cause of the hemorrhage.

Shearing is in Utah for an engagement at a Salt Lake City night club.

No Hayseeds Are Seen At Farm Bureau Talks

CHICAGO (AP)—The changing face of American agriculture made itself obvious this week at the annual convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Upwards of 4,000 members from 49 states—Alaska doesn't have a unit—Puerto Rico are participating in a gathering which, by all outward appearances, could have been a conclave of well-groomed lawyers, bankers or businessmen.

The men were, for the most part, in neat business suits. Their wives were smartly dressed, many with new hats and fashionable hairdos.

There was nothing that harked back to yesteryears when the farmer was set apart from his city cousins by his carelessness of attire and by behavior that led other to see him as a country bumpkin or hayseed.

Unlike many farm gatherings of the past, the federation sessions heard no complaints that the farmer was downtrodden.

Rather, delegates generally expressed satisfaction with the farm situation and indicated they were optimistic about its future.

Convention discussions centered mainly on the technical problems of today's scientific and automated agriculture, the prospects for future markets and criticism of federal farm-aid programs which the Farm Bureau has been saying for years it wants eliminated.

The term horny-handed, long applied to tillers of the soil, could be applied to few in attendance. That is because machines are now doing much of the work farmers used to do by hand.

These characteristics reflect what has been taking place in farming in recent years. The number of farms and farmers has been declining. But farms have been becoming larger and operators have been earning larger incomes. More and more machines are used. Living standards have improved.

Today's commercial farm operator looks upon himself not so much as a farmer, but as a businessman engaged in a vital and growing processing industry—the turning of soil, water, grains and forage into food.

In a talk opening the convention, president Charles B. Shuman, himself a modern-day scientific Illinois farmer, told delegates that a "good income is not an inherent right of farmers. They must earn it."

This remark was warmly applauded. Not so many years ago, it would have been hooted down at a farm meeting.

Even perhaps more significant than any other change is the clear-cut indication that farmers—once regarded as extreme individualists who insisted on going their own way regardless of the eventualities—are willing to work together to bargain for better returns for their commodities.

Ohio College Expells Boa From Campus

CLEVELAND (AP)—Francis (or Frances) is a college dropout.

Officials at Baldwin-Wallace college in Suburban Berea did not like the idea of a 7-foot-2 boa constrictor living in a fraternity.

"I guess I just like snakes," said owner Robert Tyrrel, a 22-year-old sociology student who isn't sure if Francis is a him or a her.

The snake is considered bold but not dangerous, said Tyrrel. "The idea of a snake is that it is a good watchdog, or watch-snake," he said.

"People are wary of going into a room if there is a snake there."

College officials agreed. They sent Tyrrel a letter, informing him there was a campus rule prohibiting pets on campus.

Francis is now being cared for by Mr. and Mrs. Glenn E. Hankinson Jr. of Berea.

While at school, Francis bunked in at the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity at Heritage Hall on campus. Francis followed George, another boa constrictor who was ill.

Tyrrel talked officials into letting him nurse George back to health with iron pills and penicillin. But George died last Nov. 30 and Francis came to college from Tyrrel's home in New York.

Now Francis will eventually join Tyrrel's other pet boas at home — Benny, who lived on campus from January to June, and Gus, who never went to school.

Soviets Take Major Step Toward Economic Realism

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union has taken a major step toward economic realism.

Budget and development plans for 1966 adopted by the Supreme Soviet last week indicate an intention to correct an imbalance created in the Stalin era between industry and agriculture.

The announced plans suggest that the U.S.S.R. hopes to be able to concentrate on internal development instead of having to turn its major attention to the danger of a new world war.

Despite a hard-sounding line on Viet Nam and other East-West questions, new budget increases in projected military spending are regarded as only in proportion to the increase in total spending.

An apparent slowdown in the rate of growth of the Soviet economy does not mean it is failing to develop rapidly. It has become so big that it is more difficult to increase the growth rate. The planned rate for 1966 will be 6.7 per cent, a drop from a claimed rate of 8.5 per cent this year and the lowest since the 1946 postwar recovery year.

In 1958, for example, production of five million tons more steel meant a 9 per cent increase. In 1966 it would take more than eight million additional tons to match that growth percentage.

An attack on chronic agricultural problems also is a factor in slowing down the over-all rate of growth. Soviet planners, charting rapid development for agriculture, know to their sorrow that farming in the U.S.S.R. does not lend itself to accurate planning.

Crop failures in 1963 and again this year forced the Soviet Union to buy wheat abroad. Meat and dairy products remain in short supply.

In March, the leadership decided to invest 41 billion rubles in agriculture in the 1966-70 five-year plan. This is as much as was invested in the previous 19 years.

Stalin left agriculture to stagnate — and thus eventually failed to feed an expanding population adequately — because he demanded concentration on heavy industry. His industrialization was relatively simple. The U.S.S.R. would produce "the means of production" such as steel and other heavy industrial goods, and a limited range of goods for the consumer, such as the same kind of blue underwear for all Soviet men, for example.

But it became difficult to control every nut and bolt from a centralized Moscow ministry.

Now an effort at limited decentralization is in progress, involving more local initiative in enterprises and rewards for producing goods which sell, rather than meeting command quotas. It means, simply, the profit system.

More consumer goods are promised, but this will come slowly.

Some new industrial equipment eventually will benefit the consumer. Light industry construction is supposed to rise 22 per cent, while industrial investment over-all is up only 5.2 per cent. This suggests a slow shift toward giving the Soviet people a larger share of what they produce, along with a better diet.

Weekly Food Review

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK (AP)—There will be little cheer in food bills this week. Wholesale food prices climbed to their highest marks in a decade, and already have spread to the markets.

Fresh pork prices are high, reflecting an even greater drop in the pork supply than had been expected earlier. The supply is 22 per cent below last year.

In the New York metropolitan area, pork prices are up 18 to 24 cents a pound. On the West Coast, they are up 2 to 10 cents a pound, on top of a 1 to 7 cent increase last week.

Beef production also is down. Lamb supplies are about 5 per cent lower than a year ago.

Egg prices are up in some areas, matching increases in ham and bacon. The increase is due to a greater consumer demand than expected.

Turkey prices are resisting the upward trend.

The seasonal decline in milk prices is expected to be shorter than usual, with production down about 1 billion pounds from 1964.

Rain damage in Florida and California cut vegetable crops and raised prices. Tomatoes generally are higher because of the shortage.

Gemini Craft Fly Together

Originally, Mission Control Center in Houston said the two should stay together only about four hours. But Navy Capt. Schirra and Air Force Maj. Stafford requested an extra orbit, saying they had plenty of fuel to practice more maneuvers.

Flight director Christopher C. Kraft Jr. granted the request.

At 7:52 p.m., after 5 hours, 26 minutes, Schirra fired his jet thrusters to drop Gemini 6 into a lower orbit and he and Stafford gradually pulled ahead of Gemini 7 at the rate of 28 miles each 90-minute orbit.

While they were together, the two flew completely around each other, over and under and back and forth as they tried to determine the best way to fly in formation with another spacecraft—a technique that must be developed for manned flights to the moon.

They took movie and still pictures of their space acrobatics and made star-tracking and infrared measurements on the spaceships. Most of the maneuvering was done by Gemini 6 which had the most fuel.

"It's great, really outstanding," exclaimed Lovell.

Both sets of astronauts retired about 10 p.m. after their exciting day in space.

Asked by a tracking station when the Gemini 7 pilots wanted to be awakened, Borman replied: "Give us a call when you want us to wake up. We're both pretty beat."

Although the astronauts traded a few wisecracks, most of the time they were deadly serious as they performed the most difficult task ever attempted in space.

It went so well that Schirra said "We would have no trouble docking."

Gemini 6 originally planned to dock with an Agena satellite but was thwarted when the Agena failed to reach orbit. The rendezvous with Gemini 7 was substituted.

The next Gemini flight, No. 8, will try again to achieve a docking with an Agena.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials seemed surprised at the flawless manner in which Gemini 6 chased and caught Gemini 7.

Robert Gilruth, director of NASA's Manned Spacecraft Center, said:

"It's very rare that something totally new will work with perfection the first time you try it. But it worked today. The orbital mechanics worked out by the experts were figured well."

"These people have a good understanding of the rendezvous theory. On subsequent Gemini flights we can train the pilots in more intricate rendezvous maneuvers without worrying about spending three or four flights working out the basic rendezvous maneuvers."

Five more Gemini flights, all involving docking and astronaut space walks, are planned next year. Some will practice the rendezvous and hookup maneuvers which will be performed by astronauts leaving the moon for the return trip to earth.

Following the Gemini program will come the first earth orbit flights of the three-man Apollo moonship, aiming for a 1969 lunar landing.

Flight director Kraft called the rendezvous "the biggest milestone in space since the John Glenn flight."

Glenn was the first American to orbit the earth, circling the globe three times in 1962.

President Johnson watched the Gemini 6 launching on television in Washington and later congratulated the astronauts and all those responsible for the successful rendezvous.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported the flight in detail without comment.

In terms of space accomplishments, the Gemini 6-7 flight gave the United States a wide lead over the Soviet Union in the man-in-space race.

It came shortly after Russian scientists reported medical problems with the three cosmonauts who rode Voskhod 1 into orbit for a day last year.

U.S. astronaut flights have turned up no major medical difficulties and Borman and Lovell are still in excellent physical shape as they near the end of their marathon flight.

Russia has not launched a manned craft since last March. Since then the United States has sent five two-man Gemini capsules into orbit and wrested every space record from the Soviets.

Borman and Lovell Wednesday alone surpassed the combined time in space of all 11 Russian cosmonauts.

The Soviets have not yet demonstrated a maneuverable spacecraft that would enable them to conduct the precise movements needed to complete a rendezvous like that of the Gemini 6 and 7 vehicles.

Gemini Craft Fly Together

Originally, Mission Control Center in Houston said the two should stay together only about four hours. But Navy Capt. Schirra and Air Force Maj. Stafford requested an extra orbit, saying they had plenty of fuel to practice more maneuvers.

Flight director Christopher C. Kraft Jr. granted the request. At 7:52 p.m., after 5 hours, 25 minutes, Schirra fired his jet thrusters to drop Gemini 6 into a lower orbit and he and Stafford gradually pulled ahead of Gemini 7 at the rate of 28 miles each 90-minute orbit.

While they were together, the two flew completely around each other, over and under and back and forth as they tried to determine the best way to fly in formation with another spacecraft—a technique that must be developed for manned flights to the moon.

They took movie and still pictures of their space acrobatics and made star-tracking and infrared measurements on the spaceships. Most of the maneuvering was done by Gemini 6 which had the most fuel.

"It's great, really outstanding," exclaimed Lovell. Both sets of astronauts retired about 10 p.m. after their exciting day in space.

Asked by a tracking station when the Gemini 7 pilots wanted to be awakened, Borman replied: "Give us a call when you want us to wake up. We're both pretty beat."

Although the astronauts traded a few wisecracks, most of the time they were deadly serious as they performed the most difficult task ever attempted in space.

It went so well that Schirra said "We would have no trouble docking."

Gemini 6 originally planned to dock with an Agena satellite but was thwarted when the Agena failed to reach orbit. The rendezvous with Gemini 7 was substituted.

The next Gemini flight, No. 8, will try again to achieve a docking with an Agena.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials seemed surprised at the flawless manner in which Gemini 6 chased and caught Gemini 7.

Robert Gilruth, director of NASA's Manned Spacecraft Center, said:

"It's very rare that something totally new will work with perfection the first time you try it. But it worked today. The orbital mechanics worked out by the experts were figured well."

"These people have a good understanding of the rendezvous theory. On subsequent Gemini flights we can train the pilots in more intricate rendezvous maneuvers without worrying about spending three or four flights working out the basic rendezvous maneuvers."

Five more Gemini flights, all involving docking and astronaut space walks, are planned next year. Some will practice the rendezvous and hookup maneuvers which will be performed by astronauts leaving the moon for the return trip to earth.

Following the Gemini program will come the first earth orbit flights of the three-man Apollo moonship, aiming for a 1969 lunar landing.

Flight director Kraft called the rendezvous "the biggest milestone in space since the John Glenn flight."

Glenn was the first American to orbit the earth, circling the globe three times in 1962.

President Johnson watched the Gemini 6 launching on television in Washington and later congratulated the astronauts and all those responsible for the successful rendezvous.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported the flight in detail without comment.

In terms of space accomplishments, the Gemini 6-7 flight gave the United States a wide lead over the Soviet Union in the man-in-space race.

It came shortly after Russian scientists reported medical problems with the three cosmonauts who rode Voskhod 1 into orbit for a day last year.

U.S. astronaut flights have turned up no major medical difficulties and Borman and Lovell are still in excellent physical shape as they near the end of their marathon flight.

Russia has not launched a manned craft since last March. Since then the United States has sent five two-man Gemini capsules into orbit and wrested every space record from the Soviets.

Borman and Lovell Wednesday alone surpassed the combined time in space of all 11 Russian cosmonauts.

The Soviets have not yet demonstrated a maneuverable spacecraft that would enable them to conduct the precise movements needed to complete a rendezvous like that of the Gemini 6 and 7 vehicles.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP)—The war in Viet Nam is President Johnson's most baffling experience and in the end it may do him more political damage than anything that ever happened to him.

He has had great success, in the Senate and White House, persuading people he could reach by phone or in person. And for most of his political life his problems were those at home.

But Viet Nam is halfway around the world and the Communists there are out of reach. And they won't listen.

And here at home, unless there is a settlement in the war before the 1966 congressional elections, the Republicans are sure to make it a big issue in the campaigns. He can remember President Harry S. Truman and the Korean War.

One example of how much direct contact means to Johnson came Wednesday at the end of his two-day conversation with Pakistan's President Mohammed Ayub Khan.

American relations with Pakistan had become a little rocky since the Indian-Pakistani war this year when there were anti-American demonstrations in Pakistan and each side complained the other was using weapons supplied by this country.

Johnson and Khan wound up their conversation with an agreement to deal directly with each other in the future on matters of common interest.

Bill D. Moyers, White House press secretary, said the two men had discussed the misunderstandings that had impeded communications between them in the past but that now the communications seem clear again.

Johnson and Secretary of State Dean Rusk on one side, and the North Vietnamese on the other, in making their separate declarations on how the war could be ended were not talking to each other directly but at each other.

In the process they have apparently talked themselves into a dead end since the terms each side laid down almost certainly would require the other to surrender, with no out.

Johnson has to be concerned to some extent about the anti-war groups in this country because, although to a limited degree, they reflect divided opinion in this country.

He may feel it necessary to keep them in mind as he ponders actions to win the war, actions which will have to be more drastic than any taken so far if the war is to be finished.

But his real political problem at home will be the Republicans if the war drags. This week their congressional leaders and some of their governors issued a unanimous declaration urging Johnson to stronger action.

The Republicans climbed on Truman's back within two months after the start of the Korean War in 1950, which was a congressional election year. They made a declaration then and made the war an election issue.

They continued making it an issue all through 1951 and it boiled over in the 1952 presidential campaign which Dwight D. Eisenhower won after promising to go to Korea if elected.

The desire to deprive the Republicans of an issue would, by itself, be a big incentive for Johnson to redouble his efforts next year to settle the war.

Carelessness Is Costly
TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Wang Kuei, 33, has been indicted for endangering public safety by discarding a burning cigarette butt. The resulting fire caused $100,000 damage to property and left more than 100 persons homeless.

Many No Longer Link Christmas, Religion
TUEBINGEN, Germany (AP)—A public opinion poll indicates that 31 per cent of the men and 28 per cent of the women in West Germany no longer regard Christmas a religious holiday.

The Wickert Public Opinion Institute said today it conducted its survey after a similar poll in England showed that almost two-thirds of those queried did not regard Christmas a religious observance.

Santa and the Zabbazara Bus

BY LUCRECE BEALE

Synopsis: Mr. D destroys the Voodoo man's evil mirror and tells Santa the story of the Zabbazara bus. Santa says there is such a place as Zabbazara and they will go there to break the spell of the Voodoo man.

CHAPTER TEN A MAP OF DREAM LANDS

Mr. D patched up the broken gas tank with chewing gum and Santa filled the tank with gas from the toy automobile shop. "I shouldn't drive," said Mr. D. "I can't see properly without my glasses."

"I keep a spare pair of glasses for myself," said Santa. "Try mine."

Mr. D put on Santa's glasses. For the first time in his life things looked straight and true. "They're like magic! Everything is beautiful!"

"Not I!" said the crocodile. "Even you," said Mr. D. "And the Fabulous Dunklebum, too."

"Wait until we get to Zabbazara," said the little boy. "I bet that'll be the most beautiful."

The crocodile shook her head. "I'm going to stay here with the Fabulous Dunklebum."

The ugly old crocodile, in love with the ugly old monster, could not bear to leave him even though he had turned to stone.

The donkey felt sorry for them. He said, "I'll stay, too. What if the Voodoo man comes back? Someone has to be here to protect things!"

"That's true," said Santa. "How sensible you are."

No one had ever told the donkey he had sense. He felt very proud. He almost didn't mind not going to Zabbazara.

"Goodbye! Goodbye!" He waved to Santa and the little boy and Mr. D as they climbed aboard the bus. "Don't worry. I'll take care of everything."

The crocodile waved, too, and

"Here is Zabbazara," said Santa. "That's where we must go."

called out, "Don't forget to break the spell!"

In the bus, the little lost boy sat beside Santa. "What will happen if you don't find a way to break the spell?" he asked. "There'll be no Christmas," said Santa. "How can I make toys without my workers and how can I deliver them without my reindeer? And when the Voodoo man finds I did not look in his mirror and turn to stone, he won't rest until he has cast another spell for me. We must get there very fast for it is only a few days more before Christmas."

"But," said Mr. D from the driver's seat, "How do you know there is truly such a place?"

"I have a map and I have seen it there," Santa unfolded a sheet of fine linen. On it, embroidered in silk threads, was a map of faraway places.

"It's not a map of the world at all!" protested the boy.

"It is a different world. These are lands where you go in your dreams," he pointed to an island embroidered in gold. "See, here is Zabbazara. I have heard there is a princess there who can give any gift and break any spell. That's where we must go."

"An island!" exclaimed Mr. D. "How on earth will I get the bus to an island?"

"Just follow the directions on the map."

Mr. D studied the map. Here were directions in strange languages and roads whose names he couldn't pronounce. There were highways that seemed to leap across oceans and lands that seemed to hang in the skies.

Maybe it was because of the glasses Santa had given him or maybe it was for some other reason, but suddenly the map seemed very clear to Mr. D. He knew for sure that the Zabbazara bus really was going to Zabbazara.

Dime-Begging Santa Hailed Before Judge

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP)—A "Santa Claus" who appeared in full regalia in Municipal Court faces the forlorn prospect of spending the Christmas season in jail.

The "Santa," 44-year-old Robert Fraley, was fined $25 and costs by Judge Richard T. Cole on charges of vagrancy and soliciting alms—and lodged in jail when he was unable to pay the fine.

Judge Cole held a cold silence to Fraley's plea of "if you let me go I'll go back to my job in Dayton."

Fraley was a Volunteer of America St. Nick in Dayton Monday and jailed here Tuesday after he had abandoned his chimney and its collected contents on a Dayton street and departed in a brand new Santa suit. He told police he had hitchhiked a truck ride to Springfield.

He was arrested while allegedly begging youngsters to "give Ol' Santa a dime."

Fraley, of Paintsville, Ky., still wore his Santa suit when taken into court today.

At the University of Michigan, Richard L. Cutler, vice president in charge of student affairs, said:

"These people are professionals and entitled to their own opinion, but the University of Michigan at this time is not prepared to follow their advice."

Their advice, in essence: Make explicit the school's attitude towards sexual conduct and set up a "sound rules structure," but don't interfere unless sexual activity "fails to maintain privacy" and "is likely to be disturbing to others."

It "sounds like a good, sensible, down-to-earth statement of the situation," said William Speer, associate dean for student counseling at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. "I am all in favor of anything that meets the issue head on, rather than with pussy-footing."

Dr. Henry Bruyn, director of student health service at the University of California, said:

"I think it is an excellent report. The sexual growth and behavior of young adults is very often distorted and disturbed by overly restrictive college rules and policies."

The Rev. James V. McGlynn, dean of the Graduate School of the University of Detroit, a Roman Catholic school, called the report "a strange combination of valuable insights and bland oversimplification."

"It seems to overlook the sacred and personal nature of sex," he said. "Specifically for church-related colleges and universities our stand must clearly be for the morality of our religious group."

D. Edwin Harrison, president of Georgia Tech, said, "I don't think it's part of the administration of any college or university to condone or support any activity leading to immorality."

A similar view was expressed by Dr. Fred Turner, dean of students at the University of Illinois.

Most college administrators who had read the report and were willing to comment on it approached it cautiously.

"It's a very liberal view, a little too far-fetched for me," said Thomas F. Jones, president of the University of South Carolina. "I can't be very detached about our young people's concerns and needs."

College Chiefs Cautious About Campus Sex Data

NEW YORK (AP)—Should college administrators worry about their students' sex lives?

A report by a group of psychiatrists says they shouldn't, provided sexual activity is "practiced with appropriate attention to the sensitivities of other people."

D. Edwin Harrison, president of Georgia Tech, said, "I don't think it's part of the administration of any college or university to condone or support any activity leading to immorality."

A similar view was expressed by Dr. Fred Turner, dean of students at the University of Illinois.

Most college administrators who had read the report and were willing to comment on it approached it cautiously.

"It's a very liberal view, a little too far-fetched for me," said Thomas F. Jones, president of the University of South Carolina. "I can't be very detached about our young people's concerns and needs."

At the University of Michigan, Richard L. Cutler, vice president in charge of student affairs, said:

"These people are professionals and entitled to their own opinion, but the University of Michigan at this time is not prepared to follow their advice."

Their advice, in essence: Make explicit the school's attitude towards sexual conduct and set up a "sound rules structure," but don't interfere unless sexual activity "fails to maintain privacy" and "is likely to be disturbing to others."

It "sounds like a good, sensible, down-to-earth statement of the situation," said William Speer, associate dean for student counseling at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. "I am all in favor of anything that meets the issue head on, rather than with pussy-footing."

Santa and the Zabbazara Bus

BY LUCRECE BEALE

Synopsis: Mr. D destroys the Voodoo man's evil mirror and tells Santa the story of the Zabbazara bus. Santa says there is such a place as Zabbazara and they will go there to break the spell of the Voodoo man.

CHAPTER TEN A MAP OF DREAM LANDS

Mr. D patched up the broken gas tank with chewing gum and Santa filled the tank with gas from the toy automobile shop. "I shouldn't drive," said Mr. D. "I can't see properly without my glasses."

"I keep a spare pair of glasses for myself," said Santa. "Try mine."

Mr. D put on Santa's glasses. For the first time in his life things looked straight and true.

"They're like magic! Everything is beautiful!"

"Not I!" said the crocodile. "Even you," said Mr. D. "And the Fabulous Dunklebum, too!"

"Wait until we get to Zabbazara," said the little boy. "I bet that'll be the most beautiful."

The crocodile shook her head. "I'm going to stay here with the Fabulous Dunklebum."

The ugly old crocodile, in love with the ugly old monster, could not bear to leave him even though he had turned to stone.

The donkey felt sorry for them. He said, "I'll stay, too. What if the Voodoo man comes back? Someone has to be here to protect things!"

"That's true," said Santa. "How sensible you are!"

No one had ever told the donkey he had sense. He felt very proud. He almost didn't mind not going to Zabbazara.

"Goodbye! Goodbye!" He waved to Santa and the little boy and Mr. D as they climbed aboard the bus. "Don't worry. I'll take care of everything."

The crocodile waved, too, and

"Here is Zabbazara," said Santa. "That's where we must go."

called out, "Don't forget to break the spell!"

In the bus, the little lost boy sat beside Santa. "What will happen if you don't find a way to break the spell?" he asked. "There'll be no Christmas,"

Dime-Begging Santa Hailed Before Judge

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP)—A "Santa Claus" who appeared in full regalia in Municipal Court faces the forlorn prospect of spending the Christmas season in jail.

The "Santa," 44-year-old Robert Fraley, was fined $25 and costs by Judge Richard T. Cole on charges of vagrancy and soliciting alms—and lodged in jail when he was unable to pay the fine.

Judge Cole held a cold silence to Fraley's plea of "if you let me go I'll go back to my job in Dayton."

Fraley was a Volunteer of America St. Nick in Dayton Monday and jailed here Tuesday after he had abandoned his chimney and its collected contents on a Dayton street and departed in a brand new Santa suit. He told police he had hitchhiked a truck ride to Springfield.

He was arrested while allegedly begging youngsters to "give Ol' Santa a dime."

Fraley, of Paintsville, Ky., still wore his Santa suit when taken into court today.

10 BILLION FLASHES — The four-shot flashcube held by Kathy Burns, G-E's "Lady of Light," is the 10 billionth photo lamp made in the U.S. since the Cleveland company introduced the first flashbulb in this country in 1930.

Its giant forebear, also held by Kathy, the No. 75, is the largest ever made. The combined light of the flashbulbs produced so far could light the entire North American continent from a height of 800 miles, G-E experts say.

An early automobile manufacturer of little faith equipped each horseless carriage with a whip socket on the grounds that a horse would be needed sooner or later to pull the vehicle home.

College Chiefs Cautious About Campus Sex Data

NEW YORK (AP)—Should college administrators worry about their students' sex lives?

A report by a group of psychiatrists says they shouldn't, provided sexual activity is "practiced with appropriate attention to the sensitivities of other people."

An Associated Press survey of campus opinion today found much interest, but little agreement, concerning a report by a committee of the Group for the Advancement of Psychiatry, a nationwide organization.

Most college administrators who had read the report and were willing to comment on it approached it cautiously.

"It's a very liberal view, a little too far-fetched for me," said Thomas F. Jones, president of the University of South Carolina. "I can't be very detached about our young people's concerns and needs."

At the University of Michigan, Richard L. Cutler, vice president in charge of student affairs, said:

"These people are professionals and entitled to their own opinion, but the University of Michigan at this time is not prepared to follow their advice."

Their advice, in essence: Make explicit the school's attitude towards sexual conduct and set up a "sound rules structure," but don't interfere unless sexual activity "fails to maintain privacy" and "is likely to be disturbing to others."

"It sounds like a good, sensible, down-to-earth statement of the situation," said William Speer, associate dean for student counseling at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. "I am all in favor of anything that meets the issue head on, rather than with pussy-footing."

Dr. Henry Bruyn, director of student health service at the University of California, said: "I think it is an excellent report. The sexual growth and behavior of young adults is very often distorted and disturbed by overly restrictive college rules and policies."

The Rev. James V. McGlynn, dean of the Graduate School of the University of Detroit, a Roman Catholic school, called the report "a strange combination of valuable insights and bland oversimplification."

"It seems to overlook the sacred and personal nature of sex," he said. "Specifically for church-related colleges and universities our stand must clearly be for the morality of our religious group."

D. Edwin Harrison, president of Georgia Tech, said, "I don't think it's part of the administration of any college or university to condone or support any activity leading to immorality."

A similar view was expressed by Dr. Fred Turner, dean of students at the University of Illinois.

"The attitude of the University of Illinois, for as long as I can remember, is that illicit conduct is illicit conduct. This is behavior which is not condoned," Dr. Turner said.

DANNY SPEAKMAN

JIM NOEL

The two tallest members of the Circleville High School basketball team are Dan Speakman, 5-11, and Jim Noel, a 6-1 candidate. Both are juniors. Speakman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Speakman, 954 Circle Drive. Noel's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Garland Noel, live at 620 Garden Parkway.

Tigers Play at Hillsboro In Final Cage Tilt of 1965

The Circleville High School basketball team plays its final game before the Christmas holidays Friday at Hillsboro.

The Tigers will then have a three-week layoff from the cage wars. Action resumes Jan. 7 when they host Washington C. H. in a South Central Ohio League tilt.

Hillsboro has a 1-2 record for the season. The Indians opened with an 84-65 loss to Portsmouth, lost their first game in the SCOL by a 59-38 count to Wilmington and defeated visiting Washington C. H. 54-50. On a basis of comparative scores and records, the Tigers and Indians seem fairly evenly matched.

 WILMINGTON is the only common foe played by the two teams to date.

The Hurricane stopped Circleville, 64-32. Both teams have only one win.

Hillsboro, like Circleville, lacks size. The pivot man for the Indians is 6-1 senior Eddie Robbins. Other candidates are Jim Dixon, Doug Wagoner, Robert Strain and John Cameron.

The Indians have a new head coach in Harry Hall, formerly coach at Buchtel-York High School. Circleville also has a new mentor in Chuck Hill.

One of the key games in the league tomorrow will be at Miami Trace where Wilmington's Hurricane will meet the Panthers. Both teams are undefeated in circuit play and both were pre-season favorites for loop honors.

The other league game finds Greenfield McClain at Washington C. H.

Saturday night Miami Trace is at Springfield North, Greenfield hosts Adena and Paint Valley is at Hillsboro.

Cincy Officials Back New Stadium

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—A newly revived campaign to construct a $20 million, 60,000-capacity sports stadium here had the support of City Council today and a good word from the president of Hamilton County Commissioners.

City Council Wednesday adopted a resolution which authorized City Manager William C. Wichman to use all city facilities to expedite the project — which hopefully would assure a National Football League franchise and a team coached by Paul Brown.

Joseph C. DeCourcy, president of the county commissioners, said he believed the commission should pledge its support and energy "toward making the stadium here a reality."

In his 14 years as head football coach at Auburn, Ralph Jordan has won 97 games, lost 39 and tied four. In 1957, he won the national championship.

OSU Grid Attendance Tops Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Perennial leader Ohio State's home attendance slipped by 135 fans a game in 1965 but the Buckeyes still led the nation as a football attraction with an average of 83,256 spectators at its five home games.

It marked the eighth consecutive season and the 14th in the last 15 that Ohio State captured the national attendance championship.

The only teams that ever attracted more were the 1964 Buckeyes with 83,391 per game and the 1957 Michigan Wolverines with 84,159.

Michigan finished second this season with an average turnout of 80,081. It was the first year since 1957 that more than one team topped the 80,000 mark.

Figures released by the NCAA Service Bureau today showed that the national college total attendance for 1965 soared to an all-time high of 24,682,572. It was a 5.69 gain over last year and the biggest one-season increase in the 18 years official national attendance records have been kept.

Oscar Leads Royals to Celt Defeat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stop Oscar Robertson and you figure to do pretty well against the Cincinnati Royals, right?

Wrong.

The Boston Celtics forgot to finish the job on the Big O and his second-half spurt led the Royals to a 117-110 victory over the perennial National Basketball Association champions Wednesday night.

Elsewhere in the NBA Wednesday, Baltimore ended New York's three game winning streak, 111-108. Philadelphia whipped Los Angeles 122-108 and San Francisco downed St. Louis 128-113 at Oakland, Calif.

The Celtics held Robertson to four free throws in the first half but the Big O broke loose for 17 points in the third period as Cincinnati took control. Robertson finished with 27 but the big man for the Royals was Oscar's backcourt partner, Adrian Smith, who pumped a career-high 34.

Smith took up Robertson's first-half scoring slack, hitting 23 points in the first 24 minutes. Sam Jones led Boston with 24.

The victory was Cincinnati's third in five meetings with the Celtics this season and sliced Boston's first-place margin in the Eastern Division to one game.

Saban Is Voted 'Coach of Year'

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Saban, coach of the defending champion Buffalo Bills, has been voted Coach of the Year by the American Football League.

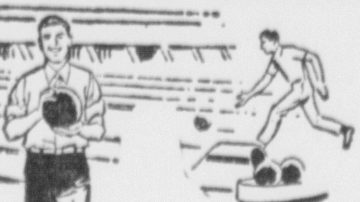

An Associated Press panel of 24 sports writers that included three from each league city, gave Saban 14 votes. Al Davis of Oakland was second with seven. Sid Gillman of San Diego, the Western Division champions, got two, and Weeb Ewbank of the New York Jets received one.

Saban moved to Buffalo from Boston in 1962 and led the Bills to their first winning season with a 7-6-1 record. The Bills had the same won-lost record in 1963 when they tied Boston for the Eastern Division crown but lost to the Pats in a playoff.

Mid-Am OKs Post-Season Cage Play

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Mid-American Conference has taken steps to allow more than one of its clubs to participate in post-season basketball tournaments.

Commissioner Bob Jones said the league's Council of Presidents voted unanimously, at a winter meeting here last week, to accept bids from the National Invitation Basketball Tournament, if they are forthcoming.

This would allow the runner-up team in the seven-member league to play in the NIT. The conference champion is obligated to compete in the NCAA championship each year on an automatic invitation basis.

Ohio University and Miami tied for the league championship last season and the Bobcats won the right to represent the MAC after beating Miami in a playoff game. If the new policy prevailed then, Miami probably would have been invited to the NIT.

In other action, according to James, the Council decided against expansion with the comment that "the Mid-American Conference is not interested in expansion at this time."

Audrey Hepburn Film Is Delayed by Stork

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Audrey Hepburn was supposed to start a new film in May with Albert Finney, but it has been postponed. Miss Hepburn and her husband, actor-director Mel Ferrer, are expecting their second child.

The Academy Award actress and her husband are at their home in Morges, Switzerland. The baby is due July 17. They have a son, Sean, 6.

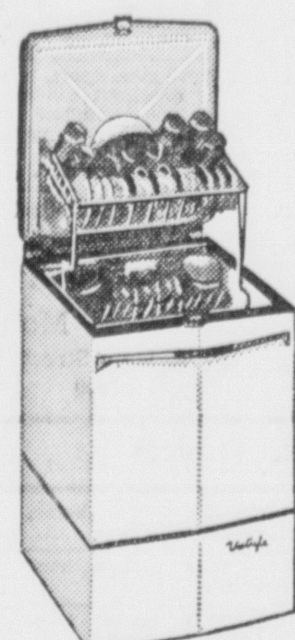

Buffalo QB Named as MVP in AFL

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — "It hasn't been my best year statistically, but I feel it's my best year at all-around quarterbacking," the Most Valuable Player in the American Football League said today.

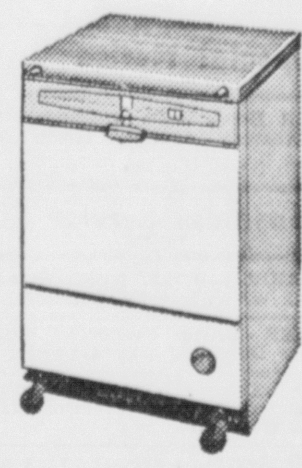

He's 30-year-old Jack Kemp of the Buffalo Bills, who just three years ago was picked up on waivers for $100. This year he led the Bills to their second straight Eastern Division title.

"This is the biggest honor in my career," Kemp said upon hearing that he had been chosen Wednesday the Most Valuable Player in the league in a vote of 24 sports writers. There were three writers from each league city who make up The Associated Press panel.

Tigers Play at Hillsboro In Final Cage Tilt of 1965

The Circleville High School basketball team plays its final game before the Christmas holidays Friday at Hillsboro.

The Tigers will then have a three-week layoff from the cage wars. Action resumes Jan. 7 when they host Washington C. H. in a South Central Ohio League tilt.

Hillsboro has a 1-2 record for the season. The Indians opened with an 84-65 loss to Portsmouth, lost their first game in the SCOL by a 59-38 count to Wilmington and defeated visit-

AL Fielding Aces Named For Season

BOSTON (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles and the New York Yankees each placed two players among last season's American League fielding leaders. This was revealed today with the release of the final official averages.

The Orioles' pace-setters were second baseman Jerry Adair and shortstop Luis Aparicio. Adair had a .986 average while Aparicio finished with a .971 mark. The latter led at his position for the seventh straight season, one less than the major league record.

The Yankees placed first baseman Joe Pepitone and pitcher Whitey Ford, Pepitone with a .997 average and Ford with 1.000. The veteran southpaw handled 60 chances, high among the 39 pitchers who did not make an error.

Rocky Colavito of Cleveland paced the outfielders by turning in flawless fielding performances in 162 games. This tied a major league record for outfielders playing 150 or more games without an error established by Danny Litwhiler of the Philadelphia Phillies in 1965.

Colavito handled 274 chances, 265 putouts and nine assists in 1965.

The other leaders were third baseman Don Wert of Detroit and catcher Jerry Zimmerman of Minnesota. Wert had a .976 average, and Zimmerman's was .997.

Cleveland had the highest club fielding average, .9812 followed by Detroit with .9809, California .9805 and the Chicago White Sox, .9804.

OSU Grid Attendance Tops Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Perennial leader Ohio State's home attendance slipped by 135 fans a game in 1965 but the Buckeyes still led the nation as a football attraction with an average of 83,256 spectators at its five home games.

It marked the eighth consecutive season and the 14th in the last 15 that Ohio State captured the national attendance championship.

The only teams that ever attracted more were the 1964 Buckeyes with 83,391 per game and the 1957 Michigan Wolverines with 84,159.

Michigan finished second this season with an average turnout of 80,081. It was the first year since 1957 that more than one team topped the 80,000 mark.

Figures released by the NCAA Service Bureau today showed that the national college total attendance for 1965 soared to an all-time high of 24,682,572. It was a 5.69 gain over last year and the biggest one-season increase in the 18 years official national attendance records have been kept.

Oscar Leads Royals to Celt Defeat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Stop Oscar Robertson and you figure to do pretty well against the Cincinnati Royals, right?

Wrong. The Boston Celtics forgot to finish the job on the Big O and his second-half spurt led the Royals to a 117-110 victory over the perennial National Basketball Association champions Wednesday night.

Elsewhere in the NBA Wednesday, Baltimore ended New York's three game winning streak, 111-108, Philadelphia whipped Los Angeles 122-108 and San Francisco downed St. Louis 128-113 at Oakland, Calif.

The Celtics held Robertson to four free throws in the first half but the Big O broke loose for 17 points in the third period as Cincinnati took control. Robertson finished with 27 but the big man for the Royals was Oscar's backcourt partner, Adrian Smith, who pumped a career-high 34.

Smith took up Robertson's first-half scoring slack, hitting 23 points in the first 24 minutes. Sam Jones led Boston with 24.

The victory was Cincinnati's third in five meetings with the Celtics this season and sliced Boston's first-place margin in the Eastern Division to one game.

Saban Is Voted 'Coach of Year'

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Saban, coach of the defending champion Buffalo Bills, has been voted Coach of the Year in the American Football League.

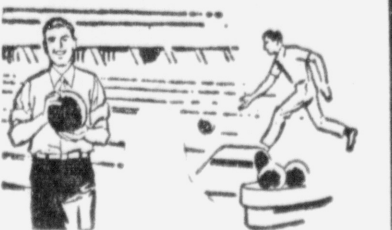

An Associated Press panel of 24 sports writers that included three from each league city, gave Saban 14 votes. Al Davis of Oakland was second with seven. Sid Gillman of San Diego, the Western Division champion, got two, and Weeb Ewbank of the New York Jets received one.

Saban moved to Buffalo from Boston in 1962 and led the Bills to their first winning season with a 7-6-1 record. The Bills had the same won-lost record in 1963 when they tied Boston for the Eastern Division crown but lost to the Pats in a playoff.

Mid-Am OKs Post-Season Cage Play

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Mid-American Conference has taken steps to allow more than one of its clubs to participate in post-season basketball tournaments.

Commissioner Bob Jones said the league's Council of Presidents voted unanimously, at a winter meeting here last week, to accept bids from the National Invitation Basketball Tournament, if they are forthcoming.

This would allow the runner-up team in the seven-member league to play in the NIT. The conference champion is obligated to compete in the NCAA championship each year on an automatic invitation basis.

Ohio University and Miami tied for the league championship last season and the Bobcats won the right to represent the MAC after beating Miami in a playoff game. If the new policy prevailed then, Miami probably would have been invited to the NIT.

In other action, according to James, the Council decided against expansion with the comment that "the Mid-American Conference is not interested in expansion at this time."

Audrey Hepburn Film Is Delayed by Stork

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Audrey Hepburn was supposed to start a new film in May with Albert Finney, but it has been postponed. Miss Hepburn and her husband, actor-director Mel Ferrer, are expecting their second child.

The Academy Award actress and her husband are at their home in Morges, Switzerland. The baby is due July 17. They have a son, Sean, 6.

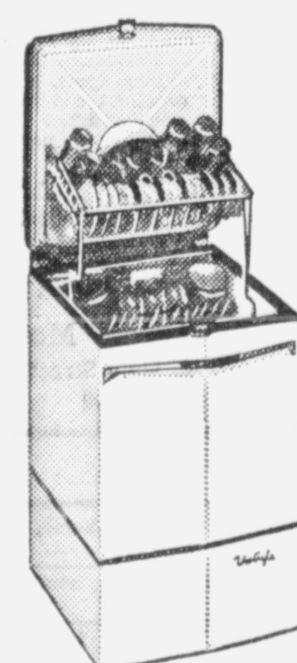

Buffalo QB Named as MVP in AFL

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — "It hasn't been my best year statistically, but I feel it's my best year at all-around quarterbacking," the Most Valuable Player in the American Football League said today.

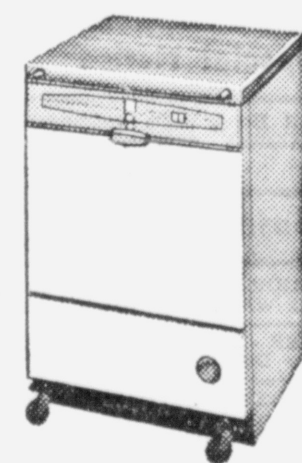

He's 30-year-old Jack Kemp of the Buffalo Bills, who just three years ago was picked up on waivers for $100. This year he led the Bills to their second straight Eastern Division title.

"This is the biggest honor in my career," Kemp said upon hearing that he had been chosen Wednesday the Most Valuable Player in the league in a vote of 24 sports writers. There were three writers from each league city who make up The Associated Press panel.

Dayton '5' Cage Record Is Unblemished

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Dayton may well carry an unblemished record into the Dec. 29-30 Sugar Bowl Basketball Tournament, now that it has clipped tough Louisville 76-59. And Kent State for sure will stay at the top of the Mid-American Conference until at least Jan. 5 with the 1-0 record it fashioned by beating Marshall 103-95 in the MAC opener Wednesday night.

Dayton's fifth straight victory and Kent's triumph at home highlighted the Ohio collegiate program Wednesday, but there were other high spots.

Akron downed Wooster, 47-34, replacing the Scots in a 4-0 tie with Otterbein for the Ohio Conference lead; Ohio University slaughtered touring San Francisco State 110-62, and Findlay handed the Quantico Marines one of the hosts' rare defeats in the annual tourney they sponsor, 77-76.

Bowling Green lost at Notre Dame in a battle of major have-nots, 85-77; Youngstown won its fifth in a row, 90-67 over Windsor, Ont.; Marietta beat Capital 94-70 and Heidelberg gained its first victory 80-75 over Denison in Ohio Conference matches; Wilmington lost to Centre (Ky.) 95-93 in overtime, and Walsh lost in the Quantico Invitational, 91-53 to Cheyney State (Pa.).

Dayton, the way it looked against Louisville and in earlier outings, should whip weak Canisius and New Orleans Loyola and carry a 7-0 mark into the Sugar Bowl joust with Houston, Auburn and Maryland.

The Flyers got clutch shooting from Bob Hooper when they needed to stem a Louisville rally and had little trouble as Henry Finkel scored 19 points and Hooper, Don May and Gene Klaus 16 apiece.

Don Seamon scored 31 for Kent as the Flashes converted 39 of 49 free throws against Marshall in the only MAC game scheduled until January.

Against San Francisco State, Ohio's Don Spires was high with 16 points.

Bowling Green's loss was its fifth straight and the Irish's Jim Monahan sealed Falcon doom with 28 points. Carl Assenheimer had 19 for the Beegees.

Gary Merrell's bucket with three seconds left gave Findlay its surprise victory after twins Jim and Jerry Carder Gnotched 22 and 19 points for the Oilers.

Georgia Tech football coach Bobby Dodd played his football at the University of Tennessee. Dodd, born Nov. 11, 1908 in Galax, Va., first played organized football at Kingsport, Tenn., High.

PROBATE COURT NOTICE

No. 19698 Mary Moore MacLain, Guardian of Mark Richard Moore, a minor. Fourth account.

And that said accounts will be for hearing and settlement before this Probate Court on Monday, January 17th, 1966, at 9 o'clock A. M. Exceptions to said accounts, if any, must be filed herein on or before January 11th, 1966.

7-Foot Player Inspires Columbia to New Power

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The Columbia Lions, underdogs for years in football and basketball, may turn out to be the surprise team of the season in the collegiate dribble sport.

The addition of sophomore seven-foot Dave Newman seems to have inspired the boys from Morningside Heights to equal the feats of the 1951 Columbia team which was unbeaten in a 21-game regular season.

The Lions spotted Rutgers an 11-1 lead Wednesday night then virtually ran the Scarlet off the court with a fast break for a 108-78 victory. It was the Lions' fifth in a row against no defeats, a string that includes a surprise triumph over Cornell in the Ivy League.

Stan Felsinger threw in 33 to pace the Lions' rally. Newmark added 24.

The Providence Friars, seventh-ranked in The Associated Press poll, barely averted suffering their first defeat at the hands of a touring St. Mary's team from California.

Two free throws by Mike Riordan in the last 12 seconds broke a 79-79 tie and gave the Friars their fourth in a row 81-79. Jimmy Walker's 31 points had kept the Friars in contention.

The second-ranked St. Joseph's Hawks of Philadelphia, the only other team in the AP Top Ten to see action, romped over Albright 85-54 behind Marty Ford's 23 points.

The Iowa Hawkeyes also remained unbeaten with a 99-100 breeze over Washington for their sixth straight. George Peeples, with 25 points, Chris Pervall with 22 and Gerry Jones with 19 led the Iowa attack.

Houston whipped Louisiana State 110-87 and Texas A&M downed Rice 89-81 in the first of the two-day Bluebonnet Classic doubleheaders, at Houston. In other games, Dayton topped Louisville 76-59, Chicago Loyola crushed Missouri 108-85. St. John's of New York walloped Canisius 85-65, Temple overwhelmed Creighton 85-59, Arizona defeated Seattle 73-64, Maryland whipped Georgetown, D.C., 77-59 and Utah State conquered Morehead of Kentucky 90-63.

Views on TV-Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Variety shows, and particularly comedy variety shows, have their good shows and their poor ones. Over the seasons, Bob Hope's monthly comedy outings have built a record that looks like the chart of a patient with chills and fever.

Hope, however, invariably has an interesting opening monologue, taking good-humored but sharp aim at everything from Los Angeles smog to White House ideosyncrasies. But sometimes the show's sketches sound as if they had been written as an afterthought and look as if the actors were running through them for the first time.

Even so, every Hope show has a special, individual charm and interest. Most of that, of course, involves the personality of the star.

But Wednesday night, NBC's Bob Hope Comedy Special was a fine one. The topical comments in his monologue had a fine biting edge. He observed that this is the season when Washington, D.C., halls are decked with "boughs of cactus" and noted in connection with French President Charles de Gaulle's poor showing in a recent election, "now he knows how an American tourist feels."

The Palm Springs sketch with Bing Crosby was amusing, had been rehearsed and even had a snapper ending. The satire on actors running for public office had many amusing moments. Only the Santa Claus sketch didn't seem to come off. But it didn't really need to, because it had Jack Benny in it and he can do interesting things without much material.

Then Gemini 6 majestically and smoothly pulled away from its launching pad Wednesday, it was a beautiful and reassuring sight.

The television networks were well-prepared for their after-noon chores but trying to describe how two small space capsules managed to meet in the vast void of space was a tough assignment.

Communications between the astronauts and ground controls seemed to consist of static-ridden exchanges of numbers and bits of technical information. At one point an unidentified voice came on strong and summed up the general feeling of jubilation and relief.

"We made it," exclaimed the voice. Recommended tonight: "The Dean Martin Show," NBC, 10-11 EST, with Ella Fitzgerald, George Gobel, Barrie Chase, Gordon and Sheila MacRae.

Dayton '5' Cage Record Is Unblemished

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Dayton may well carry an unblemished record into the Dec. 29-30 Sugar Bowl Basketball Tournament, now that it has clipped tough Louisville 76-59. And Kent State for sure will stay at the top of the Mid-American Conference until at least Jan. 5 with the 1-0 record it fashioned by beating Marshall 103-95 in the MAC opener Wednesday night.

Dayton's fifth straight victory and Kent's triumph at home highlighted the Ohio collegiate program Wednesday, but there were other high spots.

Akron downed Wooster, 47-34, replacing the Scots in a 4-0 tie with Otterbein for the Ohio Conference lead; Ohio University slaughtered touring San Francisco State 110-62, and Findlay handed the Quantico Marines one of the hosts' rare defeats in the annual tourney they sponsor, 77-76.

Bowling Green lost at Notre Dame in a battle of major have-nots, 85-77; Youngstown won its fifth in a row, 90-67 over Windsor, Ont.; Marietta beat Capital 94-70 and Heidelberg gained its first victory 80-75 over Denison in Ohio Conference matches; Wilmington lost to Centre (Ky.) 85-93 in overtime, and Walsh lost in the Quantico Invitational, 91-53 to Cheyney State (Pa.).

Dayton, the way it looked against Louisville and in earlier outings, should whip weak Canisius and New Orleans Loyola and carry a 7-0 mark into the Sugar Bowl bout with Houston, Auburn and Maryland.

The Flyers got clutch shooting from Bob Hooper when they needed to stem a Louisville rally and had little trouble as Henry Finkel scored 19 points and Hooper, Don May and Gene Klaus 16 apiece.

Don Seanoer scored 31 for Kent as the Flashes converted 39 of 49 free throws against Marshall in the only MAC game scheduled until January.

Against San Francisco State, Ohio's Don Spires was high with 16 points.

Bowling Green's loss was its fifth straight and the Irish's Jim Monahan sealed Falcon doom with 28 points. Carl Assenheimer had 19 for the Beegees.

Gary Merrell's bucket with three seconds left gave Findlay its surprise victory after twins Jim and Jerry Carder Gnotched 22 and 19 points for the Oilers.

Georgia Tech football coach Bobby Dodd played his football at the University of Tennessee, Dodd, born Nov. 11, 1908 in Galax, Va., first played organized football at Kingsport, Tenn., High.

7-Foot Player Inspires Columbia to New Power

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS The Columbia Lions, underdogs for years in football and basketball, may turn out to be the surprise team of the season in the collegiate dribble sport.

The addition of sophomore seven-foot Dave Newmark seems to have inspired the boys from Morningside Heights to equal the feats of the 1951 Columbia team which was unbeaten in a 21-game regular season.

The Lions spotted Rutgers an 11-1 lead Wednesday night then virtually ran the Scarlet off the court with a fast break for a 108-78 victory. It was the Lions' fifth in a row against no defeats, a string that includes a surprise triumph over Cornell in the Ivy League.

Stan Felsingher threw in 33 to pace the Lions' rally. Newmark added 24.

The Providence Friars, seventh-ranked in The Associated Press poll, barely averted suffering their first defeat at the hands of a touring St. Mary's team from California.

Two free throws by Mike Riordan in the last 12 seconds broke a 79-79 tie and gave the Friars their fourth in a row 81-79. Jimmy Walker's 31 points had kept the Friars in contention.

The second-ranked St. Joseph's Hawks of Philadelphia, the only other team in the AP Top Ten to see action, romped over Albright 85-54 behind Marty Ford's 23 points.

The Iowa Hawkeyes also remained unbeaten with a 99-70 breeze over Washington for their sixth straight. George Peoples, with 25 points, Chris Pervall with 22 and Gerry Jones with 19 led the Iowa attack.

Houston whipped Louisiana State 110-87 and Texas A&M downed Rice 89-81 in the first of the two-day Bluebonnet Classic doubleheaders at Houston. In other games, Dayton topped Louisville 76-59, Chicago Loyola crushed Missouri 108-85, St. John's of New York walloped Canisius 85-65, Temple overwhelmed Creighton 85-59, Arizona defeated Seattle 73-64, Maryland whipped Georgetown, D.C., 77-59 and Utah State conquered Morehead of Kentucky 90-63.

NEW YORK (AP) — Variety shows, and particularly comedy variety shows, have their good shows and their poor ones. Over the seasons, Bob Hope's monthly comedy outings have built a record that looks like the chart of a patient with chills and fever.

Hope, however, invariably has an interesting opening monologue, taking good-humored but sharp aim at everything from Los Angeles smog to White House ideosyncrasies. But sometimes the show's sketches sound as if they had been written as an afterthought and look as if the actors were running through them for the first time.

Even so, every Hope show has a special, individual charm and interest. Most of that, of course, involves the personality of the star.

But Wednesday night, NBC's Bob Hope Comedy Special was a fine one. The topical comments in his monologue had a fine biting edge. Geomac To Drill Another Oil Well

Although several oil and gas leases in Pickaway County have been released by firms which bought them, Geomac of Granville is continuing oil explorations here.

The Granville based firm is the only company actually conducting drilling operations in the county.

Larry McCarthy, who heads the geophysical firm, reported operations will be continued here.

Before the end of the year, the firm expects to drill another offset well on land under lease at the Riffin farm in Jackson Twp.

$45 Paid For Hog Is Said Illegal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Tuscarawas County commissioners shouldn't have paid Bertha Dunfee $45 for her hog, the State Auditor's Office said today.

And, said a two-page report from the auditor's office, the three county commissioners who approved the payment and the county auditor who allowed it owe that $45 to the county's general fund.

Nothing in the report says that Bertha Dunfee, of New Philadelphia has to return the $45 she collected after a deputy sheriff shot the hog.

It is, the auditor's report says, the responsibility of the county commissioners and county auditor for letting her get paid.

She wanted $85 for the hog. But that claim was cut down when it came before the commissioners late in 1963.

The payment wasn't proper the auditors ruled, because Deputy Sheriff Samuel Bonifant acted in self-defense when he fired the fatal shot. It didn't kill the hog immediately, but the animal died later.

The hog was adjudged to have been running loose and allegedly chasing children, the report noted, citing three messages on the log of the sheriff's office.

Realtors Elect New Officers

John Evans was elected president of the Pickaway County Board of Realtors this week during a meeting at Pickaway Arms.

Evans succeeds William Bressler who held the office for the past two years.

Elected vice president was Curtis W. Hix. Merle Swank was named secretary-treasurer of the organization.

George Barnes was elected state trustee, with E. R. (Tom) Bennett named an alternate trustee.

Students Start Holidays Dec. 22

Pickaway County Superintendent of Schools George D. McDowell announced county schools will close for Christmas vacation Wednesday.

McDowell noted Wednesday is scheduled as a full day. Most schools will have Christmas programs in the afternoon, he pointed out.

Classes will resume Jan. 3.

oped there has been taken out of operation, McCarthy said. But it has not yet been abandoned, he added.

He noted one more attempt will be made to conduct a pumping operation which will be profitable. The first well produced approximately 1,500 barrels before it was shutdown.

Of the leases which have been terminated, most of them involve farms in the eastern section of the county.

McCarthy noted his firm expected to spend a great deal of time and money in the search for oil here. Geomac first began drilling operations in 1962, and has put down a number of wells.

The well at the Blanche Riffin farm in Jackson Twp. is the first producing one in Pickaway County.

County Recorder Hazel Yeatts noted many of the old Kewanee leases which have been maintained expire in 1966.

The Kewanee Oil Co. drilled a dry well near New Holland in 1956. Although the operation was unsuccessful, the firm maintained many of the leases it had obtained.

Good Will Temple Sold For Old Price

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—For the same price the state offered only to meet rejection, Nationwide Life Insurance Co. has purchased Temple of Good Will Inc., property in downtown Columbus.

Now the site in the city's civic center will hold neither the Ohio Historical Center nor an Ohio Protestant Center.

For the time being, it will continue to be used as a parking lot.

B. F. Lamb, president of the Temple corporation, announced sale to Nationwide Wednesday for $1.75 million.

Gov. James A. Rhodes' administration had offered that amount when the state wanted the plot for the historical center but was told the price was $2.4 million.

A site on the state fairgrounds was chosen for the historical building. Temple of Good Will then came down to the state's offer, but Rhodes said to forget it.

Nationwide says it has no immediate development plans for the property but considers it a good investment.

Lamb said the firm's plans didn't call for immediate construction of the Temple of Good Will originally planned on the 5.25-acre site.

The temple idea was to provide a home for national offices of Protestant churches and organizations.
